GERMANS MAY BE CALLED TO VERSAILLES BY FIRST OF MAY

American Delegate Estimates That Time for Enemy Delegates to Attend Peace Gathering Will Be on Date Between April 26 and May 1.

FINAL DETAILS OF WORK UNDER WAY

Americans in Doubt Whether $45,000,000,000 Indemnity Can Ever Be Collected in Full From Germany; Possibility of Repudiation.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, April 12.—A special dispatch from Bamberg to the Vossische Zeitung says that the German Government has announced that the Entente Powers have informed it that Bavaria is not to be included in the conclusion of peace and that measures will be taken to prevent any Entente foodstuffs from reaching Bavaria.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—The indications today are that David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, will not leave for London until it is determined what date the German delegates will be asked to come to Versailles. An American delegate, when asked for the nearest estimate as to this date, put it between April 26 and May 1.

The impression obtained after yesterday's meeting of the Council of Four was most favorable. The arrangement of the final details of some of the important questions was said to be going on extremely well.

Germany's Ability to Pay.

While the members of the British and French Parliaments are mobilizing for a proposal to exact nothing less than full indemnification of the allies by Germany for all the costs of the war and are insisting on Germany's ability to pay the full bill, American representatives on the reparations commission expressed considerable doubt whether even the account to be paid to Germany under the plan adopted by the Council of Four (estimated at about $45,000,000,000 with the payment spread over a period of 20 years) can or will be collected in full.

They assert that they can see the possibility that the ways and means of holding Germany to payment will grow weaker as the years pass and that Germany may take advantage of some convenient opportunity in later years to repudiate her obligations to the present allied Powers under the peace treaty. They recall the action of Russia in repudiating the restrictive Brest-Litovsk clause of the treaty signed at the conclusion of the Crimean war at a moment when a new political constellation in Europe gave the Emperor of Russia a fair amount of certainty that Russia could be left with impunity.

Oppose French Proposal.

For this reason the American and other delegates on the reparations commission have proposed a new proposal which the French brought in to specify labor and other requisitions for the restoration of the devastated French provinces in the first few years after peace, mainaining that this revised the original terms of priority as between the various creditors of Germany, which had been rejected by the commission and the council of four.

They argued that France in this way might receive disproportionately a large share of her claims in the first years while the ability of the associated Governments to enforce payments was still good and that other states dependent upon later payments in money and materials might be left "holding the bag" if Germany proved recalcitrant.

The difference probably will be met by the French offer to account to the other countries for the cash value of labor, materials, cattle and other things exacted for the restoration of the nine northern provinces.

The Council of Four of the peace conference expects to finish its examination of the boundary questions in dispute on Monday next and to summon the German delegates to St. Louis to be abolished by ordinance.

High Praise for the 35th Division in Official Order From Gen. Bullard

THE text of Lieutenant-General Bullard's order, congratulating the Thirty-fifth Division upon its service to its country in France, issued upon its departure from the Second Army for return to the United States, follows:

HEADQUARTERS SECOND ARMY AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, March 7, 1919.

General Orders No. 11.

1. Upon the departure of the Thirty-fifth Division from the Second Army for return to the United States, the Commanding General of the army desires to congratulate the division upon its services to its country in France. Organized and trained in the United States, it received a special training with the British army in France, beginning in June, 1918. In July it occupied the Gerardmer sector with the French and it executed various successful raids such as the Hilsenfirst and the Mattle raids upon which it was highly complimented, and received decorations from the French, with whom it was serving. In the Gerardmer sector it covered and protected effectively a tremendous front.

In September the division backed up the First American Army during its operations in the St. Mihiel salient.

In the end of September the division attacked as part of the First Army in the great Verdun-Argonne battle. It stormed and took Vauquois Hill and Bois de Rossignol, two strong points of the German defensive line, and it afterward took the formidable positions near Cheppy, Varennes, Charpentry and Baulny, and afterward Montrebeau Woods and Exermont. It remained in the battle five days, executing five separate attacks and losing over 6000 officers and men. The Commanding General of the First Army commanded the division for its fighting spirit.

During this five days' battle the division was opposed by some of the best divisions of the German army, and from them captured over 1000 officers and men and large quantities of stores and material.

Relieved in the great battle of Verdun-Argonne from the fighting line for rest, the division after two weeks' breathing spell was placed in the active Sommedieue sector southeast of Verdun, where for three weeks it harried the enemy with patrols and raids and deeply penetrated his lines, unsettling his morale.

Relieved again about Nov. 9 from the Sommedieue sector for rest, it went into cantonment in preparation for early operations against the enemy in the vicinity of Metz. The armistice of Nov. 11 ended the war.

From the armistice through a period of trying waiting to date the division's interest in military efficiency has not flagged; its appearance, condition and state of readiness have steadily improved. Upon these the Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces has congratulated the division, and to his congratulations the Commanding General of the Second Army now wishes to add his congratulations and best wishes.

By command of Lieutenant-General Bullard.

STUART HEINTZELMAN, Chief of Staff.

Official: ALLEN SMITH, JR., Adjutant-General.

WOMAN WITH REVOLVERS FIRES ON 3 HOLDUP MEN

Came to Husband's Rescue When Men Enter Store—One Cries "She Got Me."

Mrs. Mary Jones armed with a revolver, fired at and routed three robbers who held up her husband, Jesse H. Jones, in his cigar and notion store at 1437 Monroe street at noon today.

The robbers, described as being between 18 and 22 years, entered the store when Jones was alone. One asked for a package of cigarettes. As Jones turned to get them the three men drew revolvers and ordered him to put up his hands.

Instead of complying Jones grappled with one of the men and tried to take the revolver from him. At the same time he called for help. The other two men opened the cash register and took from it $25 in cash and an unloaded revolver.

City Counselor Daves in Statement Says City's Mill Tax Claims Come Before Those of Stock and Bond Holders.

ROLLA WELLS, former Mayor of St. Louis and former Governor of the Eighth Federal Reserve District, was appointed receiver without bond, for the United Railways Co., today by Judge Dyer in the United States District Court.

In announcing the appointment the Judge said: "I am going to appoint a man in whom I have great confidence, and who, I believe, the public trusts and the interests also trust—a man who is honored in this city and in this community. I name Rolla Wells and of how he 'ordered' Wells to accept the appointment.

Judge Dyer said that he came to a decision as to the appointment late last night and this morning was taken to Wells' home in the automobile of Frank B. Hall, son of the clerk of his court. Wells was in his study and when the Judge told him of his decision to appoint him receiver he replied: "Oh, Judge, I can't take it. I want to quit. I'm through."

"Get up, you lazy thing," the Judge said to him.

"I won't take it, I tell you," Wells protested, according to Judge Dyer. "I've quit. I don't think I can handle it."

Judge Dyer answered: "Well, on my order you just get up and do the best you can."

The Judge said that as yet he had not given Wells any instructions as to his duties as receiver or any intimation of what will be expected of him.

MERCANTILE CLUB BUILDING SOLD UNDER MORTGAGE

The Mercantile Club Building, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, one of St. Louis' oldest institutions, was sold at auction at noon today for $240,000 to Nathan Frank, an attorney, who bought for the Morton Investment Co., of which he is trustee.

The property was sold to satisfy a second mortgage of $100,000 and interest amounting to $4500 due Mar. 11, on a first deed of trust of $200,000. There is also a third mortgage of $100,000 in addition to the claim of the Seaman petitioners.

He also is clothed with legal power to bring suits in the company's behalf in courts here & elsewhere.

The receiver is required to file with the court, within 60 days, an inventory of all the United Railways properties. He also is required to make quarterly reports on the earnings and disbursements.

The order restrains the United Railways Co., its officers or agents, from interfering in any way with Wells' management and administration of the property.

The court reserves the right to appoint one or more additional receivers.

At the opening of the court today Judge Dyer said he would hear arguments on the receivership petition filed yesterday by Samuel W. Adler of New York, a bondholder. In connection with this suit the United Railways Co. yesterday filed an answer in which it admitted all the allegations in the Adler petition and acknowledged its insolvency. Adler's principal allegation was that the company was insolvent by reason of its inability to pay to the War Finance Corporation of the United States Government $2,400,000 under

LEAGUE REVISION FINISHED WITHOUT JAPANESE SECTION

AMENDMENT SPECIFICALLY EXEMPTING MONROE DOCTRINE; NO VITAL CHANGE MADE AT COMMISSION MEETING YESTERDAY.

RESERVATIONS BY JAPAN AND FRANCE

TEXT OF COVENANT WILL BE MADE PUBLIC IN A FEW DAYS; SOON READY FOR A PLENARY SESSION.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—With the single exception of the amendment specifically exempting the Monroe Doctrine from being affected by the covenant, no vital change was made by the League of Nations Commission in that document in its meetings on Thursday and Friday nights.

"In my long service," Gen. March said, "don't recall another instance where American soldiers did not want to go into a fight. They always have said 'Lead us to it.'

Gen. March did not indicate what the latest reports showed as to the present state of discipline among the American forces.

MUNICH SOVIET REPUBLIC IS REPORTED OVERTHROWN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 12.—The Soviet republic in Munich was overthrown Friday by force of arms, the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Berlin says.

"I shall endeavor to conserve and promote the interests of the bondholders, the stockholders and not least of all, the public."

He said that the statement could be made to street car passengers that they might expect service of at least present efficiency and perhaps better.

"The cars will continue to operate," he said, "the giving of transfers will continue, there will be notification of that disintegration that the public apparently fears in receiving service." On the contrary, it is the purpose of a receivership and of receivership to preserve the continuity of the system and so conduct it that it will be of best service to this city."

No sections were included granting the Japanese and French demands, but Japan and France announced that they would reserve the right to bring up the desired amendments before the plenary session of the peace conference.

The Japanese delegation, which was to meet in Paris in a few days, says the official announcement of the League of Nations commission regarding last night's session. Except for the technical task of bringing the French and English texts into accord with the covenant, the announcement states, is ready for a plenary session of the peace conference.

Last night's discussion lasted four hours. President Wilson attending the session and remaining until it closed, after midnight. No date was set for a plenary session of the peace conference to consider the covenant.

The covenant as the commission left it did not include any section granting Japan's request for the recognition of racial equality and neither did Japan introduce its demand for an international military general staff. Both Japan and France announced that they reserved the right to bring up the amendments they desired before a plenary session of the conference. As it now stands the covenant contains 26 sections.

The French delegation on the League of Nations commission voted for the adoption of the text of the covenant when the commission in-dorsed it last night but made reservations as to two points, first the organization and effective control of the manufacture of war material, and second, the institution of permanent military control. The commission decided to submit the agreement to a plenary session of the peace conference shortly but set no definite date.

DISCUSSION OF DOCTRINE.

Discussion of the Monroe Doctrine amendment by the League of Nations Commission Thursday night is described by those present as having been of a dramatic character, concluding with a speech by President Wilson deprecating the opposition which had been expressed and upholding the doctrine as one of the great bulwarks against absolutism.

The debate came late in the session, after other subjects had been passed upon.

The British attitude had been in doubt until last, but Lord Robert Cecil turned the tables by announcing that he saw no objection to the amendment in the form presented by the President. M. Larnaudie of the French delegation followed Lord Robert with objections to inserting the Monroe Doctrine.

Speaks With Feeling

The President paid the closest attention to the opposition to the amendment, and jotted down notes for a reply. In his speech the President spoke with great earnestness, and with some evidence of feeling.

He declared that the Monroe Doctrine must be upheld to control the Latin American, and to hold back the threat of absolutism, which was then menacing Europe, and seeking to spread its absolute power to the Western Hemisphere.

It served its purpose in keeping this absolute power from the Western world.

One of its great purposes, he said, was to maintain territorial and political integrity and, having served its great purpose in the Western world, it was now being brought to the lands which had, felt the hand of absolutism and militarism.

It was a source of surprise and discouragement, the President said, to hear of

15,000 SAILORS ARE TO BE DEMOBILIZED IN ST. LOUIS

Lieutenant-Commander E. A. Brooks, who served as a recruiting officer for the navy here in 1917-18, when the St. Louis district led the country in navy recruiting, will be in charge of the navy demobilization station established here.

He also will be in charge of the recruiting work which will be carried on in connection with the demobilization work at the Calumet Building, Seventh and Chestnut street. His assistants will be Ensigns John A. Martin and William C. Cooper of the Navy Pay Corps who arrived here yesterday. Men living in Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas will be discharged through this office.

According to Commander Brooks, the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association, and various other organizations, are being asked to cooperate in the work of discharging the men. All ships and stations of the navy will be notified, and men will immediately begin arriving here for discharge from the service when plans for handling them at the local office are completed. Work of demobilization will start in a few days.

Approximately 15,000 men will be handled through the St. Louis office it is thought, the number being hand-handled daily depending upon the number who arrive in the United States and who live within the boundaries of the city. Men will be assigned and discharged the same day, receiving their pay and physical examination during the morning.

Ensign Martin will have charge of the Federal insurance work and will endeavor to induce each man to continue his policy. Ensign Cooper will have charge of the pay department. A corps of yeoman will assist in the work.

MAN WHO SAYS HE IS HEAD OF TEAMSTERS' UNION HELD

Bond Fixed at $6000 After He Is Accused of Aid in Attack on Driver.

Charles (Red) Lanham, 31 years old, 1624 North Sixteenth street, who claims the presidency of the Local Transfer Teamsters' Union, No. 600, with headquarters at 517 North Third street, who was identified yesterday by Walter Braun, a driver for the St. Louis Dairy Co., as one of the men who led an attack on him Tuesday morning in front of 3769 Kennedy avenue, and who exchanged shots with the police which resulted in Mrs. Emma Foster Smith, 60 years old, being struck and killed by a stray bullet, early today was released on a $6000 bond.

Lanham denied he was present when Braun was attacked. He was ordered held for the Circuit Attorney, $1000 bond being required on the assault charge and $5000 bond on a possible manslaughter charge if the grand jury finds he was implicated in the shooting which resulted in Mrs. Smith's death. It has not been determined whether she was killed by a bullet from a police revolver or one fired by the men who attacked Braun.

From the quarters occupied by Hans W. Orthwein, butler in the home of Alfred A. Siegel, 5565 Lindell boulevard, burglars yesterday afternoon took $18 in cash and articles of jewelry valued at $130. No effort was made, police say, to get into the Siegel residence.

Mrs. Amelia Harnish, 8224 Minnesota avenue, left her home for 15 minutes to go to a grocery in the afternoon. In her absence a sneak thief got into the home and stole $10 from a dresser drawer.

At the home of Nick Machanik, 828 Geyer avenue, sneak thieves obtained $135 in jewelry.

Chicken thieves raided five henries in Southwest St. Louis during the night, carrying away pet and fancy fowls.

MEN TO BE TAKEN TO BUFFALO

Three Arrested Here Wanted in Connection With Hold-Up.

Photographs of Russell Barone, Joseph Lewis and Norman Hayes, sent to Buffalo, N. Y., following the arrest by Detectives Kaiser and Werner at Channing avenue and Olive street early in the week, resulted in a message from Chief of Police Higgins of Buffalo last night asking that all three be held for him.

The police said the pictures had been identified in connection with a "payroll hold-up" and said the policemen from Buffalo had come here immediately for the men.

Lewis and Hayes were "picked up" by the detectives when they were seen to come out of a cafe near the Olive street corner late at night. Barone gave his home as Buffalo when he was arrested a short time later and said he had recently come here from that city. All three denied knowledge of any charge against them in Buffalo.

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the substitute of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to furnish it brought about these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and the lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.—ADV.

A POPULAR, though comprehensive treatment of one of the most novel and terrible subjects connected with the war is contained in "Gas and Flame in Modern Warfare," by Maj. S. J. M. Auld of the Royal Bershires Regiment, member of the British Military Mission to the United States, and expert on gas and the means of neutralizing its effect.

Nature placed a limit on German treachery, doubtless to the chagrin of the scientists of kultur. This limit is explained by Maj. Auld, who says that pure phosgene, the deadliest of gases, cannot be used, as it does not come out of the cylinders satisfactorily unless mixed with a big proportion of chlorine or something of the sort.

The story, persistent at one time, that the Germans were about to annihilate the allied forces with prussic acid, brings the comment that prussic acid was not used by the Germans "simply because it is not poisonous enough," not nearly so poisonous as phosgene. "It was this, and not a desire to avoid utter barbarity, which decided the Germans not to use it."

One of the anecdotes in the book is about a British Sergeant, who, in urging his squad to keep their gas helmets in repair, remarked, "If you don't look out for the 'ole in your helmet, they'll soon be looking for a 'ole for you." He also mentions the popular saying that among those in line of a gas attack, there were but two classes, "The quick and the dead." In the final chapter, on liquid flame, he mentions the word "flammenwerfer" (flame-throwing instrument) as one of the few German words which have been incorporated into the speech of Englishmen. The other such words, he says, are "strafe" and "kamerad." (George H. Doran Co.)

ANOTHER "POCKET CLASSIC."

A PRINTER'S PATRIOTISM is the latest volume in "Macmillan's Pocket Classics" series, editor and compiler is Edward Gatchell, the Hope Street High School, Providence, R. I., and the period covered by the compilation is from 1775 to 1918. Among the contents are Patrick Henry's speech on liberty, the Declaration of Independence, Washington's farewell address, Monroe's message in which he laid down the American doctrine against foreign intervention in this hemisphere, Jefferson's first inaugural address, Webster's Bunker Hill speech, Lincoln's first and second inaugurations and President Wilson's war speech to Congress and his flag day address in 1917. Addresses and letters by Theodore Roosevelt, Judge Hughes, Elihu Root, Theodore Roosevelt and many others are included. Among the patriotic poems reproduced are "America," "Star-Spangled Banner," "The Present Crisis," "The Battle Hymn," "The Boston Hymn," "The Blue and the Gray," "The Centennial Hymn," "Independence Bell," "The Revolutionary Rising," and "The Ride of Paul Revere." Many other poems not so well known but yet of historic interest, are given. An appendix contains satisfactory explanatory notes.

the Eleventh Infantry, is one of the most seriously wounded. On Nov. 11,

Verdun he was hit in six

"We had been fighting," he said, more than two hours that morning

"They dropped enough bombs to saw mine coming—a little black smoke and a little smoke—and I tried to get out of the way. I lunged to had made and it was some hole.

What Little Betting There Is on the Local Series Is Said to Favor the Home Team

Cardinals and Browns Will Both Show Improved Clubs, in Opening Battle Today

Both the Personnel and Morale of St. Louis Teams Have Been Strengthened Over Last Season—Clubs Have Fighting Chance at First Division.

By John E. Wray.

S T. LOUIS fans will sit in, this afternoon at Sportsman's Park, at the Spring overture of what promises to be one of the most surprising baseball seasons in the history of the national game, in this city.

It is hard to surprise the St. Louis fan. He is a callous fellow. He has waited so long for surprises that he has come on his imagination. The tree of his desire has not flowered in 31 years and his mental reflexes no longer respond to the prodigies of clowns or the "hope springs eternal" stuff. The pleasures of anticipation have joined McGinty at the bottom of a sea of disbelief. The only thing that provokes him to mirth is the suggestion that "it looks like first division."

In short, this tough bird is a "show me" guy.

But, nevertheless, we reiterate he will be surprised. In fact, if he hasn't kept abreast of the news he will probably wipe his spectacles and verify with a second look the astonishing observations he makes when the Browns and Cardinals take the field. He may be surprised to see Branch Rickey, who shot into fame only five years ago as manager of the Browns, now heading the Cardinals; while over on the American League side, the chief of the Browns, we will observe James T. Burke, who first graduated into the managerial ranks as leader of the Cardinals!

Many Players Change Parks.

The Ray Van Winkle of the baseball world next will be electrical when he turns to the score card. At the top of the Cardinal batting order he will find the name Bert Shotton, called "the Barber," one of the fastest men on bases in all baseball, before the shoulders. In the middle of the line-up, leaders of the most potent offense in the game today; yet only two seasons ago Bert was getting on base about 275 times a year for the Browns!

The fan will also note that Herman Bronkile, who is third basing for the Cardinals, is the author of a similar trick for the Cardinals, in the last year; that Grover Lowdermilk of the Sportsman's Park squad today, once grew wild on the Vandeventer avenue squad; and that Paulette and Clemmons, erstwhile Browns, are now crawling around the Knot Hole weather the storm.

Fate of Both Teams in Pennant Races Seems to Hang on the Work of Pitchers

WE volunteer the above hope on the strength of a last surprise we have to present, namely—that the Cardinals have a fair team, one that will possibly make the first division grade; and therefore some money.

Of course the cynical will crack a sore lip or two at the mere suggestion that any St. Louis club could be meritorious. But we may advance a few deductions, gleaned from long burning of the midnight kilowatt hour, over the dope. The findings are as follows:

The Cardinals have the best catching staff in the league, if Gossage and Snyder both "stick."

They have an infield that will run one-two-three in hitting and fielding.

They have an outfield that, going at its best, will hit a .300 clip.

They have a pitching staff that will be outclassed by only two teams in the league—Chicago and Brooklyn.

They have plenty of speed and youthful elasticity.

They have a leader—he decides to accept permanent full responsibility for the executive, financial and superintendence of baseball qualities.

Furthermore, it may be said that the Browns, too, have a chance to start Wayne Wright, who threatens to be the lead with a display of pitching, strength and endurance. All actions are realized, will suffice to put the club within sight of first division. Davenport, Shockier, Sotheron, Wright, Rogers, Gallia, Lowdermilk, Williamson, appear to have better possibilities for high pitching success than the Cardinal staff.

Unfortunately for getting away to a start Wayne Wright, who threatened to be the lead with a display of pitching, strength and endurance, will be meaningless, not to say very odious. The favorite pastime of that time that Sisler will outwit Hornsby will be based upon the merest chance, and neither can possibly have struck his mid-season form.

Somebody has said that the Browns were a 3 to 5 betting "hope" and the Cardinals 7 to 5, against. But, the man who will give odds either way ought to have his conch peered into. Our idea of a daredevil is a man with an opinion as to the outcome of a St. Louis spring series.

CATCHING STAFF—Very highly praised by the team's manager.

INFIELD—Defensively very strong; weak on attack, save for Sisler, the greatest first baseman of the day and the potential successor to Ty Cobb, the greatest fielding player of the country.

OUTFIELD—Not comparable to the great outfields that other clubs in the league can boast, but containing good straightaway sitters.

MANAGER—A leader who has the regard and best wishes of all, his men and one who has seen wide service as coach and assistant manager under great tacticians.

Spring Series Meaningless.

As to the series about to begin, fans will have an opportunity to inspect the work of several newcomers to the local squads, notably Schulte, Stock, Clemons, the Cardinals and Bronkile and Billings of the Browns.

Not much is to be expected as to the display of form to indicate where the new stand and race for final factor in the major leagues.

Both teams had successful training seasons, however, with the Browns having had a week longer of Facts About New Men on Local Clubs.

Browns.

Herman Bronkile—Purchased from Indianapolis club of American Association. In 18 games at close of last season he batted .221 and fielded .554. He is 29 years old, bats and throws right-handed and started playing in 1907 with Newark. He had a previous trial in the majors with Cleveland. Plays third base.

Josh Billings—Catcher obtained from Cleveland team of National Association. Is 28 years old, bats and throws right-handed. Started playing in 1912 with Manhattan, Kan., and has been in majors three years.

Walter Mayer—Catcher purchased from Red Sox. Right-handed batter and thrower. In major four years with White Sox and Red Sox. Started in 1911 at McGraw. Plays third base.

Umpires: Clarence Owens, American League and Charles Riger, National League.

Next in the succession of novelties will be a qualifying statement concerning the chaffering of the Cardinals, which is that Rickey is manager and yet is not. His management period, until he makes up his own mind whether he wants the job as a regular nightmare or merely as a temporary attraction. Rickey, that is to say, up to last night had not announced definitely whether he would consent to act through the season as manager of the Browns, now heading the Cardinals; while over on the American League side, the chief of the Browns, we will observe James T. Burke, who first graduated into the managerial ranks as leader of the Cardinals!

Wanted: A Subtreasury.

Another surprise, to many fans, will be the fact that the Cardinals are here at all—at least under the existing directors. For, be it known, the ship in ownership almost founders and is not yet safe in port. It's complicated by a galaxy of troubles, including the necessity of raising at least $50,000 by the middle of May and of rousing about 700 indifferent stockholders to contribute to the treasury with abandon. Any one who has tried to make a living on a bunch of stockpicks will have an idea of the ease with which this can be accomplished.

Nevertheless, the directors have tenaciously kept at the job of floating the Cardinal Idea and thus far have kept the property out of the clutches of the Sheriff and Russell Gardner. Just now it's better than an even-money wager that the club will weather the storm.

Baltimore Damage Suit Goes to Jury

Justice Stafford to Give Final Instructions in Case This Morning.

WASHINGTON, April 12—Final arguments were completed in the U.S. $900,000 damage suit of the Baltimore Federal League club against organized baseball and after instructions have been read ready to the jury.

The plaintiff's counsel in the final argument stressed the evidence of the defense in presenting the case of the Baltimore club to the jurors.

Following similar action by the French Lawn Tennis Association,

the British tennis authorities voted to bar the subjects of the Central empires from competing in tournaments sanctioned by the British Lawn Tennis Association. This association adopted the following somewhat stringent regulation:

No British players shall be allowed to take part in any tournaments or contests organized by our enemies and hostile powers.

All enemy players are prohibited from entering tournaments or competitions sponsored by the U. S. A.

British players are prohibited from participating in tournaments or competitions organized in any neutral country.

The acceptance of the same has

numerous nations.

The British Tennis Association has also taken by all concerned to render the accentuation of the word

"British."

The plaintiff's counsel in the final argument stressed the evidence of the defense in presenting the case of the Baltimore club to the jurors.

The defense requested the jury to view the case in the light of a business transaction and contended that "the Federal League had in it the seeds of death at the time the Balti-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

An Ex-Soldier's Complaint.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Why is it that so many business men of our city will not give a soldier a position as quick as they will a man who stayed at home. I am a married man and was away out of the first draft when I felt it my duty to help Uncle Sam and my dear ones here. I have applied for a good job and went and did what I felt it my duty for my country and now that I am discharged and back home some people whom I have applied to for work even went so far as to say to me you had no business to enlist; you were not in the draft (of course it would not do print what I told them), and all that kind of stuff and then they turn around and hire a man whom I would call a slacker, one who was single and did not even get drafted when the war ended. As for my old position, it was not given back to me but they gave me a job in a different department and put a black man over me. Now if that is patriotic, I would like to know. I sometimes feel so bad at the treatment of some of the business men that I might almost consider that I enlisted. Even the women who got our jobs are still being kept on and us soldiers who went to do our duty are walking the streets looking for work. It is time for some one to help the soldiers to some kind of work, at least be respectful to them when they ask or apply for work. I myself am getting almost afraid to mention that I was in the army when I make application for a position. Now this is the feelings of a soldier who made good for Uncle Sam when the slackers were reaping the harvest here at home.

Lighting in South St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
It is a fact known to everybody living in South St. Louis that the district has the most miserable light in the streets not only in the city but worse than any found in some country towns. For several evenings the lamps were not lit at all and those that were had hardly sufficient power for the light to penetrate to the sidewalk. I am one of the taxpayers in the district and would ask just whose fault it is, the master of fact is that we are not getting the light for which we pay. Who is to blame? The city authorities or the Laclede Gas Co?

Heroes in North Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I was very much interested in the letter "one who knows" who is fighting in San Domingo, and thinks the War Department has forgotten him. My husband is fighting the worst of bandits in North Russia, and according to latest reports the little band of brave Americans are cut off from the outside world, living foot by airplane only.

When we heard of this we appealed to the War Department to send help to our boys we got this answer: "The situation is well in hand and they are under the command of the British." Quite nice, don't you think? And now Secretary Baker says he is not alarmed and we have come to the conclusion he is not even interested. But they cannot visit Europe and take care of America too.

Every once in a while, when a motion picture is a little "off color," the producer and performer get quite a bit of advertising in the newspapers. Now here is a place where producer and performer have given something so sweet, clean, and altogether charming, that it would seem to be only just to the industry as a whole that you print this appreciation and give some free advertising to a picture that leaves such a sweet taste in the mouth that I hope we may have more like it; let's encourage the producers to make that kind by letting them know we approve of it. It is called the "Romance of Happy Valley" and it lives up to its name.

A Shipper's Complaint.

Our public service commissioners advise me that they have no power to force local freight trains to run on time. The Iron Mountain local freight south, is due at Hogan at 1:30 p.m., and arrives at any time between 1:30 and 8 o'clock p.m. The local freight north, is due at Hogan at 8:40 a.m., and arrives all the way from 8:40 to 1 o'clock p.m.

Some time ago the company issued an order, not on the time card, to run a local freight south one day and back the next. I have asked our legislators, both representatives and senators, to have this law changed, giving the commissioners power to control this train as this is a detriment to the patrons of the road.

I am writing this to see what the wholesale dealers and manufacturers of our cities think of their customers being treated in such a manner.

THE U. R. CONFESSES ITS BANKRUPTCY.

The original Seaman suit asking the appointment of a Federal receiver for the St. Louis United Railways, which was bitterly contested by the company, has been followed by a so-called "friendly" suit in which the United Railways joins.

In its application the United Railways itself avows the justice of the so-called "hostile" petition and confesses the truth of everything the Post-Dispatch said about it, while the several persistent and sinister efforts to prop the tottering institution at the public's expense were in progress during the past 18 months. It admits that a crisis has come in its water-logged finances, that it is insolvent, that the only hope of company as well as public is a receivership.

The questionable management which has heretofore guided the affairs of the corporation being at the end of its rope, where are those municipal officials left who chose the company's interests when the alternative of serving the city's interests was presented? Mayor Kiel said that his object was to avert bankruptcy from the company when he validated valuable franchise rights that hung by a slender thread. But it hasn't averted bankruptcy. All camouflage about the permanency of the act of validation was dissipated when the Supreme Court declared it legal and irrevocable.

Pretense that the concession to the United Railways in permitting it to pay its mill tax in installments and spreading the installments over a period of 10 years, was a quid pro quo for the validation is at an end. The company has got the franchises, but the city has not got the tax, and whether it ever gets it is problematical.

With its right to the streets assured, how much of the company's fictitious values will it be able to save in a reorganization? With a cloud on one-third of the mileage covered by its franchises, an excellent prospect would now exist of squeezing out the water and reorganizing the company on a basis of service at cost.

That the confession of bankruptcy comes so late is to be regretted. But it is not too late to reveal the quality of the whole Kiel deal in its true light.

UNDERWRITING AN ORIENTAL VENTURE.

The minimum investment which would have to be made in relieving the Armenian nation from the results of unexampled misfortune was painstakingly estimated on data showing the present afflictive conditions among these people, whose sacrifices for their religion are greater than those ever made at any one time by any one race.

When America prepared to take over the entire investment, the privilege of investing $400,000 of the subdivided total was given to St. Louis. Up to date St. Louis has invested only about $80,000. During the coming week individual St. Louisians will have an opportunity to increase their holdings in one of the most appealing enterprises in which philanthropic America has ever engaged.

This is an investment in humanity which is most attractive in its promise of satisfying returns. Any race which has maintained itself under the odds confronting the sturdy Armenians for centuries past is worthy of our support in confidence and credit. In underwriting the capital venture which is to enable them to make a new start, we may be only casting bread upon the waters. Men now living will see a strong, rich, aggressive nation arise from present scenes of desolation and the Armenian people restored to a commanding position in the East.

They may see these resourceful people planning warm-hearted relief for us, should misfortune, from which none is immune, ever overtake prosperous America.

THE STORY OF THE 35TH DIVISION

By Clair Kenamore.

HAT enemy planes had domination of the air on Sept. 28, as they had predominance of artillery, was plain on all sides. The 129th Machine Gun Battalion advanced in the morning and took position along a hedge which is some 200 yards to the north of Chaudron farm. There they were admirably placed to repel a counter attack, and their fire tended to keep beaten down enemy activity along to the east of Exermont. At 2 p.m. 10 enemy planes swept over their line, every one firing on the Missourians with machine guns. The machine gunners stayed in front with the 140th when the 138th was drawn back after dark.

The object of this withdrawal, which applied to all units of the 138th with which communication could be had, was to bring that regiment back and endeavor to put it in such shape as to enable it to lead the attack on the following day. The 140th was to hold the advanced line that night.

Meantime, the 137th and elements of the 139th had been fighting all day long in Montrebeau Wood with every determined snipers and machine gunners the enemy had planted there. Col. Hamilton of the 137th was about worn out, physically, and Maj. O'Connor, who had not been able to get in touch with his Colonel for two days, discussed what he had of the regiment as well as he could and ordered them to die in for the night. O'Connor was exhausted and went back to Baulny, where a semblance of regimental headquarters was supposed to be resting.

Division Returns to the Attack.
Maj. P. C. Kalloch, a young officer of the general staff, had been acting as Divisional Intelligence Officer. When reports of the shortage of officers in the front line reached divisional headquarters, the forward echelon of which had been moved to Cheppy, all available officers were rounded up and sent forward. Maj. Bruce MacGruder, who had come up to help if he could, was put in the intelligence job, and Kalloch was instructed to report to Col. Hamilton. At 8 p.m. he found Col. Hamilton in the rain and darkness of Montrebeau wood. The Colonel instructed Kalloch to act as his Lieutenant-Colonel, and he set about trying to find what-ever parts of the regiment were available, with the idea of learning what strength there might be in the tangle of the wood. But at 4:30 a.m. (Sept. 29) he was shown an order which gave him another piece of work to do. It was for an attack by the division.

The order directed the infantry that there would be a satisfactory artillery barrage to precede the advance, the object of which was to take the town of Exermont and the crests of the ridge running to the east and west of it.

Col. Hamilton instructed Maj. Kalloch to prepare the first wave and lead it in the attack. Col. Hamilton was to lead the second one himself.

Montrebeau Wood was black dark, except for the occasional brief flash of a German shell sent into it. The rain was falling heavily, and the business of collecting and organizing the attacking wave was a hard one. So many of the sleeping men tried to sleep, but they were dead. By the appointed time, which was 40 minutes after the order was received, he had marshaled his line. Their work is a part of the next day's story.

Maj. MacDonald Enters the Fight.
Another officer who was found that afternoon was a grim old man, as age is reckoned in the army. Maj. Clay C. MacDonald, who had been a national guardman for 25 years. He was divisional mail officer, and it seemed to be the general impression about headquarters that, despite his long experience, he was a little too old for the front line. At noon that day in Cheppy, a Lieutenant had approached Maj. MacDonald, saluted respectfully, and in a brief and soldierly manner, told him that his son, Lieut. MacDonald, had been killed that morning while leading his company in the attack. Maj. MacDonald did not react. His training did not permit that while under the gaze of so many sympathetic people. His eyes seemed to be looking wistfully to the north, where the guns were pounding on the battle line three miles away. He saluted, turned and entered headquarters, explained the case briefly and demanded of the chief of staff that he be given a command in the front line. He was at once sent forward.

Maj. MacDonald was working through the rain in Montrebeau Wood at the same time Kalloch was assembling and organizing scattered elements of the 137th.

Considering the rain and darkness, Col. Mitchell was convinced that there was little chance of finding his men. They fought with consistent bravery, but not with the superlative bold-turn to Baulny. The scout officer of the 139th and a few scouts he had found, accompanied him.

He was awakened at 3 a.m. by an order from the commander of the Sixty-ninth Brigade to attack at 5:30 a.m. He went to Col. Nuttman and explained that he could not obey the order because he could not find his regiment. Col. Nuttman told him to take what he had and form a reserve for the 137th. Mitchell instructed Capt. W. C. Williamson to form what troops he could get for this purpose.

The feeling at division headquarters was that the field was not going well. The iron resistance of the reinforced enemy, fighting on ground he knew well, and ground which he must hold at all cost, seemed firm enough to halt the division, as the battle lines were far from headquarters. The morale of a division is nearly always higher in the front lines than back at headquarters. The spirit of fighting pervades the front, the actual conflict is in the blood of the men, and their Sergeants and Lieutenants are convinced that they can whip the boche, and the feeling finds its way to the men and upholds them.

Depression at Headquarters.

To headquarters come most depressing reports from men drifting back, the slightly wounded, the slightly gassed and the physically exhausted. Each one who happens to pass through headquarters is eagerly questioned, and the returning man is very prone to believe that his personal experience and emotions are those of his whole company or regiment. He believes that the ill he suffered, mental and physical, are common to the whole command.

Bad as conditions were on the front of the Thirty-fifth Division, they were not as bad as headquarters seemed to think, for the weakness and exhaustion from which the men suffered had not yet affected their minds and hearts. They were very tired in body, but that intangible part called "morale," which is the soul of the troops as a whole, the soldier spirit and the will to victory, was stanch and firm, despite all the grim fighting. To paraphrase, "their heads were bloody but unbowed."

Col. Hawkins, the efficient and conscientious Chief of Staff, felt that he could do more good at the front than at headquarters. The officer was so poor, in the functions of headquarters seemed to him of much less importance. It was a matter of fighting now. So he asked corps headquarters to send somebody to sit in for him, while he went forward and took the place of an incapacitated field officer. Division headquarters did not know what offices were out and what were in. It so seldom heard from any of them. All reports said that the 137th was badly tangled, and some reports had it that Col. Hamilton was wounded, or gassed, or exhausted.

Brigade Is Rebrigaded.
Col. Jens Bugge came from Corps Headquarters to act as Chief of Staff, and Hawkins went forward. He found that Col. Hamilton had brought some sort of reorganization out of the remains of his regiment, that he had a line in the forward edge of Montrebeau Wood, and that he was confident he could hold it. Hawkins started back to rejoin the brigade commander, Col. Nuttman, but got lost in the darkness and failed to find him again that night.

The division had been rebrigaded as had been told, and Col. Walker now had command of the right half of the divisional front, with the 138th, and the 140th. Col. Nuttman with the 137th and the 139th, commanded the left half.

During the day of the 28th, the artillery was still trying to get into position to give more assistance to the infantry, and to counteract, as far as it could, the tremendous effectiveness of the German artillery.

He finally found two companies, and was told that the rest of the regiment was in line on the left near Baulny. Mitchell went to Baulny, reported to Col. Nuttman, told him he had found parts of A and C companies of his regiment, and asked where the rest of the regiment was. Nuttman said the troops were badly mixed. He himself had been out to the front that afternoon, he said, and had found 250 men of the 137th, and had posted them as outposts in front of the 137th Regiment.

Mitchell also learned that Ristine, commanding the 139th, had not been seen for 24 hours and was supposed to be dead, that the officer casualties in the regiment were very heavy, but not to be general impression about headquarters that, despite his long experience, he was a little too old for the front line.

At noon that day in Cheppy, a Lieutenant had approached Maj. MacDonald, saluted respectfully, and in a brief and soldierly manner, told him that his son, Lieut. MacDonald, had been killed that morning while leading his company in the attack. Maj. MacDonald did not react. His training did not permit that while under the gaze of so many sympathetic people. Maj. MacDonald was working through the rain in Montrebeau Wood at the same time Kalloch was assembling and organizing scattered elements of the 137th.

Wounded Awaiting Attention in Rain.

Mitchell fare forth and proceeded toward the front. It was very dark and raining hard, and the runners who were guiding him were not always sure of the way. He found two dressing stations, with many wounded men in and about them, waiting in the rain their turns with the doctors or waiting for some way to be taken to the rear. Finally he reached the front line of the 137th, and was taken to Col. Hamilton. He was at once sent forward. The commander of the 137th was working through the rain in Montrebeau Wood at the same time Kalloch was assembling and organizing scattered elements of the 137th.

Considering the rain and darkness, Col. Mitchell was convinced that there was little chance of finding his men. They fought with consistent bravery, but not with the superlative bold-which invites disaster. They had grown wary, adroit and capable, and they had advanced.

The men were hungry and very tired. The cold rain which kept up all night soaked them, of course, as there was no cover, but it was hard on the wounded. The doctors worked with ceaseless energy, and the stretchers bearers toiled until they dropped in their tracks, but many wounded men laid all night in the rain. I saw that night a stretcher bearer who put wires looped around his wrists and fastened around the stretchers handles, to help his tired hands. Both wrists were bleeding.

Col. Hawkins, the efficient and conscientious Chief of Staff, felt that he could do more good at the front than at headquarters. He finally found two companies, and was told that the rest of the regiment was in line on the left near Baulny. Mitchell went to Baulny, reported to Col. Nuttman, told him he had found parts of A and C companies of his regiment, and asked where the rest of the regiment was. Nuttman said the troops were badly mixed. He himself had been out to the front that afternoon, he said, and had found 250 men of the 137th, and had posted them as outposts in front of the 137th Regiment.

beyond. There they dug in extending to the northward down to hold and wait for us.

In the meantime, on the right of the night before were the 138th and the 138th Regiments, who were to attack at 5:30, but did not reach them late. What of the 140th was in position at 6 a.m., waiting for the 138th to break through it and lead the attack orders provided, but the 138th came forward.

Tank Sweeps Into Exermont.

After 6 a.m. Col. Delaplane, orders from Col. Nuttman, leading the other brigade, and Lt. Col. Walker, to proceed with the attack. Delaplane asked his own brigade commander, Col. Walker, if he should move or wait for the 138th, and the orders read, Walker said to lead the attack and have the 138th follow, and at the same time, before his deployment was complete, Nuttman ordered him to move with his own formation. This caused the movement to move with less or no formation than it would had otherwise, and resulted in Col. Walker gaining the impression that the whole division had stopped.

The same terrific machine-gun fire from every available position caught the men in the artillery from the town's own guns, and the sides pounded them, but taking advantage of the terrain and handling his very brave address, he took them forward despite heavy losses. Delaplane had with him parts of his first and third battalions, and with these manned the town and continued Rieger's line to the east. The second wave of the 140th was within 300 yards, and it was back to its original line.

Col. Walker thought that the entire regiment. He knew that a part of his command had won through to Exermont.

In the part of the 140th which stopped was in its former position, he ordered another attack for 10:30 a.m., with two battalions of the 138th and the remains of the 140th, and one battalion of the 138th in reserve.

The attack faced conditions as dire as any of the preceding. Better light helped the Germans and the tired troops down. At 10:30 a.m. he had to Col. Walker that this attack had failed. Enemy machine guns were filtering fire down the flank, so he ordered the men back to their old positions, many of these troops also had been lost. At 6 a.m. Lieut. Leahy, commanding the Second Battalion, received orders from Col. Parker to march to the woods north of Chauvigny (these are the woods to the east of Montrebeau wood) to wait for the Third battalion, which would take position on the left. It was Parker's plan to get out of these woods.

Sergeants Did Magnificent Work. Leahy moved forward. Col. Parker, commanding the other, ordered him to move to Montrebeau wood, which was his left. Leahy explained he was acting under orders of his regimental commander, and in which involved the regular attack. Nuttman made his orders positive and pointed the way Leahy took his battalion forward through Montrebeau wood, and he had no opposition in front, but as he passed out of it, the full sweep of the machine gun fire lying in the territory to the right of Exermont.

Opposition was extremely heavy, but he pressed forward west of Exermont, passing ground Kallech had been from with almost total loss, crossed the ravine of Exermont and drove the enemy before him, destroyed them when they had fought. They stubbornly held ahead, even after they came under fire on their right flank, 240. From the time they reached Montrebeau wood, Leahy had no opposition on his left flank. He did magnificent work in that advance. Among them were Sgt. Brady, Supply Sgt. Giese and Mechanic William, who had served him so well in the raid in the Vosges.

He gained a point well to the right of Exermont, but westward, on a line between Exermont and Chauvigny. There, about noon, he was wounded and put out of action. His only remaining runner, the battalion commander, carried him, half carrying him, and handling him on a wheelbarrow.

He turned the command over to John E. Mitchell, who was 10 minutes later, when the battalion fell back slowly, steadily, but there were not men left to fight and care for the wounded also. Most of the wounded and all the dead were left behind.

In the meantime, Lieut. Bright, of the First Battalion of the 138th, had come forward to the woods Leahy had held until defeated, there being no regimental organization of the attack. He came under shell and machine gun fire, and to hold the position under fire, the other battalions came up. The third battalion under command of Capt. Bottiger was to tack on the right of the three battalions of the 138th. This battalion had been from the first charged with the duty of keeping in combat liaison with the division on our right. The battalion caught a very heavy fire as it advanced, but passed through the strip of woods, and when a short distance in front of them, slowed up and stopped. Then the men began to filter back into the woods.

Sgt. Ross M. Koen was commanding I Company in which command he had succeeded another Sergeant, Robinson, who had been gassed the night before. Koen endeavored to hold his men out in front, but he could keep but six of them. With these he dug in and lay an hour firing with rifles against the plentiful machine gun nests opposing like a lone outpost attack on a much larger army. Then he fell back into the woods. There he could find none of his company or battalion, so he marshalled his six men again, advanced again into the fire-swept open and dug in on the crest of the ridge.

There will be no installment of the Story of the Thirty-fifth Division in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, but the series will be completed in Monday's paper. The final installment tells of the last day in the Argonne battle, the relief, and totals up the division's work and shows the price paid.

Ellabelle Mae Doolittle

(Delhi Poetess Has New Theme.)
By BIDE DUDLEY.

THE Women's Betterment League of Delhi held a Doolittle afternoon Thursday in Hugus Hall, the affair being so designated because Ellabelle Mae Doolittle, the noted poetess, was the guest of honor. Miss Doolittle, who is a member of the organization, had promised the ladies to read to them several of her justly famous food rhymes and at least 23 of the members were present. Promptress Perle was in the chair, calling the meeting to order at 2 o'clock with her usual verve.

"Today, friends," she said, after Bilge Peters, the janitor, had ejected the liveryman's dog, "we are to have a treat. Ellabelle Mae Doolittle is to recite several original rhymes dealing with food."

"I usually do my dealing with cards," said Miss Pompton Mead, the wisest woman in Delhi.

When the instrument had subsided, Promptress Perle introduced the noted poetess. Miss Doolittle glided gently to the center of the rostrum and held up one hand.

"My first rhyme," she said, with a Southern accent because of a recent visit to Honkville, Ark., concerns banana cake, with which all of you are familiar. I call it 'Aram Skinner Ate His Dinner and Topped It Off With Banana Cake.'

I hope you like it."

"Banana cake is great stuff," said Miss Cutey Boggs.

"Thank you, Mrs. Boggs!" replied Miss Doolittle sweetly. Then she read the following:

Arlene Skinner ate his dinner,
Including banana cake.
Said he, "It is quite a winner.
It never is fake."

He ate a lot more and rolled on the floor.

Mrs. Skeeter O'Brien was on her feet in an instant.

"Pardon me, Miss Doolittle," she said, "but I have a hunch; you mean Prism Boggs. Now, as his wife is a member here—"

"Go home and add O'Brien up," responded Mrs. Boggs heatedly. "He tried to flirt with me once."

"Ah, but that was before he quit drinking," said Mrs. O'Brien.

Promptress Perle rapped for order.

"Let Ellie read the next one," she commanded. Silence reigned.

"My next," said the poetess. "Is to my grandfather, Silas V. Doolittle."

How U. S. Navy Laid Great Mine Barrage to Stop U-Boats Now Told for First Time

Capt. Belknap, Who Was in Charge of Operations, Describes Method by Which Chain 230 Miles Long Was Constructed to "Trap Beasts of Prey Near Their Dens."

THE British Admiralty staff has been quoted as holding that the surrender of the German fleet and the final armistice were caused largely by the failure of the submarine warfare, this failure being admitted as soon as the mine barrage was found to be effective.

This statement is contained in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society describing the hitherto untold story of the remarkable work done by the American navy in laying the North Sea mines. The bulletin is based on a communication to the society from Capt. Reginald R. Belknap, U. S. N., who was in charge of the mine-laying operations.

"Savage beasts are trapped most easily near their dens," Capt. Belknap says, in explaining the theory upon which the Navy Department went to work against the enemy U-boats.

"Any barriers, however, that the allied navies could place near the German coast and near the Skagerrack were so close to the German base that the enemy could at any time break through at some point by suddenly attacking there with more force than the allies could maintain over any one section of the whole line, so far away from the bases of Great Britain.

Scheme Called Foolish at First

The plan was to plant a mine field across the North Sea, from Scotland to Norway, a distance of 230 miles, as far as from Boston to New York. It was a bold scheme; some said foolish, impossible. From the outset the operation was seen to be of great magnitude, with a mass of detail requiring constant foresight and careful adjustment. Besides the bigness, other features promised great difficulty, such as deep water, danger to the mine layers from their own mine fields in bad weather and fog, and inexperience of the large proportion of new personnel.

"Fortunately, our navy had been developing a mining force for nearly three years. As if in anticipation of this very war operation, we had planted a three-line mine field just below Sandy Hook one fine day in December, 1916—200 loaded mines. We did not tell the press about it, as it might have caused anxiety, and we took them all up next day.

"Ralph C. Browne of Salem, Mass., had submitted a design for a submarine gun which was adjudged impracticable, but one element of the gun was seen to have great possibilities if adapted to a mine against submarines.

Over 500 Contractors Put to Work

"The new invention had to be put through severe trials before we could feel sure enough; but by the end of October, 1917, the definite order was given to go ahead. Over 500 contractors and subcontractors were soon engaged in the manufacture of the many parts, small and large, that go into the makeup of a complete mine.

"Besides being a rush order all through, the task was complicated by the necessity for keeping parts of the mine secret. Some pieces had to be made here and others there and both kinds sent to a third place to be joined, and all of the parts were finally delivered at Norfolk, Va., for shipment to Scotland, where the complete mines were to be assembled and adjusted, ready to plant.

"A submarine mine of today consists of a mine case, shaped like a ball or egg, about one yard in diameter, and an anchor in the form of an iron bow about two feet square, connected by a wire rope mooring cable the size of one's little finger. The mine case contains the charge of high explosive—300 pounds of TNT in our mines—and the firing mechanism.

"When assembled, the mine case is mounted on the anchor, the combination standing about five feet high and weighing 1400 pounds. The anchor has four small wheels, like car wheels, and thus the mines may be easily moved along the decks to the launching point.

Great Transportation Problem Involved

"To receive the large amount of mine material and general supplies that soon began to collect, a large steamship pier was taken over at Norfolk, to serve as a storage as well as loading point. Nearby a plant was constructed for charging

Hour after hour, the mining goes on. The staff officers watch the scheduled events and compare the times with what they should be. A few seconds out here and there; otherwise all goes without a hitch—just as planned before leaving the United States. —CAPT. BELKNAP.

"Meantime the British naval authorities were preparing depots for us in Scotland. When finished these bases could together prepare 1600 mines a day."

"Stick to your job and go up with it."

This was the slogan adopted by the "suicide squadron," which planted the mines for the barrage. On one of the joint excursions of British and American ships, 10 American ships planting 5520 mines, four British ships planting 1300, making a total of 6820 planted in four hours. That was the record for number. The American squadron alone, a few weeks later, he states, planted a field 73 miles long, making a record for distance.

"By June 3, 1918, preparations were going full blast for the first mining excursion," Capt. Belknap says. "This term, excursion, was adopted as a cheerful offset to the sense of danger. One cargo of TNT had been enough to devastate Halifax, and our squadron had 10 cargoes. Our course would lie through areas where it was necessary to search for mines constantly, and we would come frequently in the regular thoroughfare for enemy submarines.

Cheerful Despite the Danger

"By June 6 all was ready for the first excursion. The eve of departure brings drizzling, misty weather. Midnight comes, and without signals or lights or any noise but the clanking chain, the flagship gets under way and heads out.

"Straight over to Norway we go, making Ustrie Light; then off to the northwestward. It is a busy night and early morning, keeping the ships in station, going over the mines for final touches, watching on every hand for submarines, and getting all clear for our first large operation.

"At 4:27 a. m. the signal is made that mining will begin one hour later. The crews go to mining stations, and in the flagship we look for signals reporting whether the other ships are ready. They are ready. It is like a horse race when the starter's flag is up.

"The squadron stretches a mile and a half in a beautifully straight line abreast.

"Now the mine-planting signal is flying; they will begin when it starts down. The commander, watch in hand—two minutes, one minute, 30 seconds, 15—he looks up inquiringly. All right. Five seconds—haul down!"

"And in answer red flags break out on the other ships, showing that they have begun to plant. On the flagship's bridge the call bell rings, and from the launching station at the stern the report comes, 'First mine over.'

The Laying Signal Is Given

"Hour after hour the mining goes on. The staff officers watch the scheduled events and compare the times with what they should be. A few seconds out here and there; otherwise all goes without a hitch—just as planned before leaving the United States.

"It is our job to treat these men fairly and intelligently, with the consideration which they deserve from us, and when we do this, we shall not hear of soldiers and sailor's councils.

"America has never shown so much evidence of individual prosperity. We must consider the effect which the conspicuous display of this wealth produces upon the returned soldier. If he happens to have no job, and no place to eat and sleep. It causes an ugly reaction.

"The Government has taken the task of rehabilitating the wounded men; we must see to the task of readjusting the able-bodied ones. We must make them centers of patriotic impulse in their home communities, and not centers of discontent.

'Our Returning Soldiers a Bulwark Against Bolshevism'

GEN. WOOD TRUSTS THEM IN ANY CRISIS

In Talk With a Post-Dispatch Representative General Tells What America Must Do to Insure Its Security While Turbulence Reigns in the Rest of the World.

BY CARLOS F. HURD..

THE returning soldier is viewed as a bulwark against Bolshevism by Major-General Wood, who spoke almost continuously, during his stay in St. Louis Thursday, on the themes nearest his soldier heart—what America must do for its men in uniform, and what America must do for its own future security.

This plain military man, whose plainness is rather the elegance of earnestness, has had a large following in St. Louis since the days when, with the war still a European affair, he demanded the most complete preparedness in this country. To his following has now been added the large body of relatives of men of the Eighty-ninth Division, which planted the mines for the barrage. On one of the joint excursions of British and American ships, 10 American ships planting 1300, making a total of 6820 planted in four hours. That was the record for number. The American squadron alone, a few weeks later, he states, planted a field 73 miles long, making a record for distance.

"The Employers' Association, in opening its Olive street bureau, acted on the advice of Col. Arthur Woods, representing the War Department. Now Gen. Wood has decided that our agency and others ought to be placed under one roof, and that legal and insurance bureaus should be added to what we now have here. Maj. Bonner is now here, to help us in the effort to work out a practical plan, and we expect the support of the Chamber of Commerce.

"The need for such an establishment in Chicago is increased by the proximity of Camp Grant at Rockford, where men are being demobilized rapidly. Gen. Wood believes, however, that the problem will become a much bigger one here, and that the agencies as now arranged will not be able to handle it; and we are going to do all we can to meet his ideas."

The Chicago establishment, as described by Gen. Wood, is a 5-story building occupying a city block, centrally located (120 West Adams street), and containing the local, State and Federal employment bureaus, the Red Cross, Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., Knights of Columbus and Jewish Welfare headquarters, medical clinics, expert occupational advisers, legal aid offices, handling every class of cases except divorces, and "a place for a bite and a cup of coffee." Gen. Wood emphasized the need for grouping all these establishments under one roof, instead of "passing the buck" by sending men from one place to another, perhaps several miles distant.

"We have the men," he said, "some 4,000,000, returning from the war and from the camps. Of these, 1,000,000 are probably pretty well trained, and the others are partially trained.

"We have the arms in large part. We have started the manufacture of airplanes and other equipment. Let us go on and keep up this work until we have all the equipment necessary.

"As to the building up of a force for the protection of America, Gen. Wood spoke earnestly and definitely both in his interview and in parts of his address.

"We have the men," he said, "some 4,000,000, returning from the war and from the camps. Of these, 1,000,000 are probably pretty well trained, and the others are partially trained.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Detailed at Camp Taylor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am writing this letter in behalf of Missouri boys, mostly St. Louisans, "sentenced" at this camp. Not one of us has been here less than three weeks and no sign of discharge as yet.

Everyone read in the paper where the Twenty-seventh Division (New York) landed in the States and paraded in New York. Hundreds of them arrive at this camp (Taylor) last Sunday and this a.m. received the much-coveted sheet of paper, about 10x7 inches, and are on their way to the ones who are sweet and dear to them, while we fellows from the "show" State still linger.

If Missouri does not want to be known as "first in the trenches and last out of the army" it had better wake up.

I suggest that this matter be taken up with some of our representatives in Washington and Jefferson City and see if something cannot be done to relieve the situation. God knows anyone who was in the service on this side or in Europe did their bit (the writer and those whom he is trying to help saw service in the trenches) and feel as though good nature is being imposed upon. We had the "honor" of crossing the big pond on the "bad" ship Bufore—21-day excursion, landed at Newport News, March 5, and are still attached to the army for rations, lodging and $30 per month.

If you will be kind enough to publish this in your paper all we Missourians will be very thankful.

Yours for action.

SOLDIER OF EIGHTY-NINTH DIVISION.

Italy's Claim to Dalmatia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Reading the article written by Mr. Bennington, March 30, 1919, which is called a neutral statement, I feel that some answer must be given to correct the wrong information contained in Bennington has of the situation of Dalmatia.

It is not true that Italy is dependent on the Dalmatian coast, as Italy has many good ports of her own, but it is true that Italy wants Dalmatia to control the Jugo-Slavs entirely—their commerce and their navy. Italy knows that Jugo-Slavia cannot exist without Dalmatia. Mr. Bennington speaks of Italian culture in Dalmatia. I would ask him to give this matter a further thorough consideration. To compare the Jugo-Slavs with goats is poor policy; as for example, Mr. Bennington should take the trouble to count the illiterates among the Italians as compared with the Croats, and see where the majority lies, regardless of the fact that the Italians got their schools paid for by the Government, where as the Jugo-Slavs had to pay for ours privately.

As for the population, commerce and owners of the land, the figures are these: Jugo-Slavs, 612,699; Italians, 1,028. Dalmatia land, 92 per cent is owned by the Jugo-Slavs and 8 per cent by the Italians, and these Italians have all been naturalized, even if a few generations ago.

Furthermore: Are the statesmen in Paris organizing a league of nations to secure an everlasting peace, or are they preparing for further wars?

Why does a great part of the Italians in Italy oppose the annexation of Jugo-Slav land? All we want is self-determination; why is it not given to us? Why has so much been preached of self-determination if it is not considered? Why worry about our ability to govern ourselves? We will attend to that without the aid of the Italians.

Mr. Bennington further states the Jugo-Slavs have fought for Austria to the last. There he quotes an official statement of a late Austrian commander, but there is another statement of Archduke Alfonso which states that the Slovaks are deserting the Austrian army in great numbers and the same thing never happened before.

Further, there had about 40,000 Jugo-Slavs fought on the side of the Italians some weeks before the armistice was declared; also there have been over 40,000 Slovaks and Croats on the Salonic front who deserted the Austrian army and have fought on the side of the Serbs. He further forgets to state that there have been executions in South Styria on May 29, 1918, on account of the opposition to Austrian Government.

The Jugo-Slavs has been proclaimed on Oct. 29, 1918. There were over 60,000 Slovaks and Croats behind prison walls for opposing the war—another 6000 have been hanged, without mentioning the many who fled to neutral countries.

We were informed here by our relatives that Italy is giving food to the Jugo-Slavs, and they in return have to claim Italian nationality.

The Italians should not forget the terrible catastrophe at Caporetto; we know to whom it was due. We know that the Jugo-Slavs could not resist the allies, but they could have made a great amount of trouble had they not turned against the Austrian Government.

The Jugo-Slavs will never be the slaves of Italy; they will be a free nation or shed the last drop of blood in an attempt to become free. THERESA SPECK.

MISSOURI, THE BACKWOODS STATE—WHY?

Missouri is the backwoods state of the Union. The world moves, but Missouri stands still—no, goes backward. We work in a treadmill, turning the wheel, but accomplishing nothing. We grind the same grist over and over again—all motion, no go.

The State is sixth in population. It dropped from fourth at the last census.

Is there any assurance that the State will stand sixth at the next census? Is anything being done to hold its place or push it up a peg?

St. Louis, the State's leading city and metropolis of the Mississippi Valley, standing fourth at the last census, is booked in the preliminary census survey in sixth place, with a promising chance of seventh. The city slips with the State, held in check by the same blight.

What is the matter with the State?

It doesn't lack resources. Nature has been kind to Missouri. In variety of natural resources it is unsurpassed by any state in the Union. Even with backward development, with antique and inefficient methods and with dirt roads, the State leads in several important lines of production. We stand fifth in agriculture. Our mineral deposits are varied and rich.

In education Missouri stands thirty-second. Mark that figure. It is the key to one of the obstacles to progress. Remember that a great, naturally resourceful commonwealth, sixth in population and seventh in wealth, is thirty-second in education. We starve our schools.

Why? What is the matter?

Yappism and peanut politics. The yap and the peanut politician work together for their own small, sordid purposes and interests. In close alliance with them are the privileged interests, combined and organized into a powerful unit, with able leaders and a far-reaching network of influences to accomplish their greedy ends, regardless of consequences to the public interest.

The yap is a relic of the past. He is small and antiquated. His horizon is bounded by his own rail fence. His path is the dirt road his fathers trod. Social motion shocks him and progressive change is new-fangled sin. The great, moving world is no man's land, where danger lurks. His vision of what is to be is an endless repetition of what has been. His foxy instinct warns him against any change that might touch his pocketbook.

The peanut politician is a mean, wizened-minded creature, with an unerring instinct for the base. He has an unbounded faith in the crudity and sordidness of mankind. His measure of statesmanship is the capacity to fix things for himself, his party or his faction and hold a majority of his constituents at any cost to his self-respect and the public interests. In public he is the honest friend of the people and in private the little brother of the magnate.

It is unnecessary to describe the special interests. Their work advertises them. Individually and in combination they have but one end—to hold the privileges granted them for public service and turn them into private snags; to get the largest returns in good dollars on their privileges for the least return in bad service. They work in the dark, through able agents, whose respectability and standing are only matched by their conscienceless cunning and tireless energy.

The combine of privileged interests not only works with but works the combine of yap and peanut politician.

The privileged interests supply the money. The yaps supply the votes and the peanut politicians do the work of both in public office.

Predatory wealth and predatory poverty come together for common sordid ends and have a common agent in the peanut politician at the State capital.

The waves of progress beat in vain against these bulwarks of stagnancy and reaction.

Let us see how the combination works. A brief review of the State's governmental history and a few conspicuous instances will suffice.

The cornerstone of the obstruction to progress is taxation.

Missouri has an antiquated, unscientific, inefficient taxing system. The State's Constitution, passed 43 years ago, when economic, social and industrial conditions were wholly different from the conditions of today, provides the scheme of taxation.

Manifestly the Constitution ought to be revised or radically amended. A 43-year-old Constitution makes Missouri an object of jest and reproach among her sister states. The progressive elements of the State have sought revision and amendment again and again, without success. Of many constitutional amendments submitted within a decade, only one—the amendment providing for the blind—has been obtained. No one could object to that.

There is a new Constitution League in the State, organized through the initiative of the Missouri teachers, who want the State's educational needs supplied, pleading for the submission of the question of revising the Constitution. Their petition is endorsed by civic organizations and progressive citizens throughout the State. Both the Republican and Democratic parties are pledged in their platforms to constitutional revision. Gov. Gardner has recommended it to two Legislatures.

It is not true that Italy is dependent on the Dalmatian coast, as Italy has many good ports of her own, but it is true that Italy wants Dalmatia to control the Jugo-Slavs entirely—their commerce and their navy. Italy knows that Jugo-Slavia cannot exist without Dalmatia. Mr. Bennington speaks of Italian culture in Dalmatia. I would ask him to give this matter a further thorough consideration.

campaign against and thoroughly exposed this iniquity. The campaign has been repeated year after year, without effect. The Democratic party has held power through it. High officers of State have been elected on account of it. The little progress made two years ago for better methods of taxation is about to be wiped out.

How can a State expect to make progress on a principle of dishonesty? What can it expect of progressive State legislation and administration with continued, known, acknowledged and boasted dishonesty in its tax system?

This combine of dishonesty is a corrupt nucleus which taints every part of the State administration. Its tentacles bind together all the elements of corruption and reaction. It promotes vicious measures of all kinds. It blights progress.

Let us see how the combine of the yap, the magnate and the peanut politician works to block progressive laws and administrative measures of every sort.

As Attorney-General in Gov. Hadley's administration, Elliot W. Major helped to defeat the Governor's plans for tax reform. His success in blocking the wheels of reform was his principal plea for election to the governorship. He made a yap campaign. He was elected by the yap vote and the plutocratic purse, as the friend of the tax dodgers and the hero of the backwoods.

His administration was a farce that ended in a tragedy for the State. It was a spectacular failure and brought Missouri to the verge of bankruptcy.

Yap policies raised to the zenith of yappism resulted in financial ruin with its attendant disasters to every department of State activity. The appropriations were cut to the bone, but they exceeded the revenue by $5,331,995.29. The deficit in the State Treasury reached $1,800,000.

The schools were starved.

The penal institutions were a disgrace and a national disgrace.

The penitentiary, under the contract system abolished by law, but maintained by pull and graft, was a hell on earth and a nation-wide scandal.

The institutions of the State were barely kept open on borrowed money and scant allowance. The great State of Missouri was reduced to beggary.

Gov. Gardner was elected on pledges of instant and drastic reform and an up-to-date business administration. He went into office with glowing promises of better things for Missouri. He offered a program of reform which was to rehabilitate the government, wipe out the obstacles to progress and create a new, progressive Missouri.

In his inaugural message he recited the results of the State's backwoods administration and its backward policies. He appealed to the Legislature to put the State on its feet and start it on the path to growth and glory. He pledged all his talents and his energies to the single task of giving Missouri honest, progressive government to meet all its needs. He said to the legislature:

We are not assembled here as partisans. If Missouri is to rise to her full height of power and influence, if she is to win her industrial and commercial supremacy, if she is to develop her penal, eleemosynary and educational institutions to the highest degree of efficiency and usefulness, we, her servants, now assembled and charged with the duty of rehabilitating her finances and providing for these institutions, must put aside partisanship and petty politics and consider only the common weal.

This was an admirable appeal. It seemed to herald the dawn of a new day.

To meet the immediate needs of the State the Governor recommended nine new taxes, mostly levied on well-taxed interests.

For reform of the tax system the Governor recommended the creation of a Tax Commission to enforce and supervise tax laws and with authority to make a budget.

To relieve Missourians of the primal mud and dust of dirt highways, the Governor recommended a good roads law and a Highway Commission of high-class citizens and experts.

To correct the waste, extravagance and mismanagement of the penal institutions the Governor recommended creating a commission to control all of them.

To accomplish similar results in the eleemosynary institutions he recommended what had long been advocated, the abolition of 10 local boards and the creation of a single board, to have supervision over all.

He urged the submission to the people of the question of constitutional revision.

He urged a workmen's compensation act, far too long delayed.

Campaign after campaign had been made for most of these measures, all of them necessary to economy and efficiency in administration and to the welfare of the people.

We got the nine new taxes, and we have them yet, with rosy prospects of more.

We got the Tax Commission, with the Governor's promise that it would equalize assessments, make economical budgets and cut out useless employees.

It has done everything but get results. It showed how to equalize assessments and increase the revenues by just taxation. It showed how to economize.

Three peanut politicians on the Board of Equalization have misused their power and violated the law to kill tax reform. Attorney-General McAllister, Secretary of State Sullivan and State Treasurer Middlecamp, Democrats, a majority of the board, stand solidly against the Governor and Auditor Hackman, a Republican, for the old Constitution.

A better system of taxation is only one of 20 changes in the Constitution required to free the State and free the cities of the State for modern development of natural resources and advantages and the growth, expansion and prosperity of which they are capable.

The cornerstone of the obstruction to progress is taxation.

Missouri has an antiquated, unscientific, inefficient taxing system. The State's Constitution, passed 43 years ago, when economic, social and industrial conditions were wholly different from the conditions of today, provides the scheme of taxation.

Prominent Women and Men in St. Louis Garden Club, Mostly Residents of County, Add to City's Attractions as Place of Beautiful Homes by Success With Flower Plots—Oldtime Heart's Ease, Bachelor Buttons and Marigolds Bloom This Year Where Lately Grew Vegetables in "Thrift Gardens."

MARY, quite contrary, how does your garden grow?" is an old Mother Goose query, but very pertinent just now for women in the most fashionable circles, as well as women in more modest circumstances of life. On all hands one hears hints of the joys and delights of amateur gardening, and St. Louis women seem to have taken to it this spring more than ever.

Perhaps the war-time gardening started the women in this line, although that was vegetable gardening and this year the flower gardens seem to be the principal interest.

Perhaps there is a certain significance in this, as all through the war there was so much sacrifice, so much that was horrible and dreary, that now people are demanding beauty and something that lifts the heart and spirit out of the depression and gloom, into light and joyousness, and can anything do this better than flowers? Surely no one could be unhappy and pessimistic who works in the clean, warm spring earth and has the sure hope that the result of her work will be a glory of bloom and perfume that will inspire all who behold it.

A number are trying the old-time gardens which grew in the stately gardens of our grandmothers' day and heart's ease, bachelor buttons, marigolds and many other old-time posies will soon appear in new gardens.

There is a group of prominent women, and men too, who belong to the St. Louis Garden Club and who devote a great deal of time and thought to their gardens. The majority of them have attractive homes in St. Louis County and no country home is complete without its flower garden. The members of this club meet once a month, except during the season when the gardens are blossoming, when meetings are held often with the opportunity of inspecting the flowers. Papers are read at the meetings, experiments are made and discussions follow relative to plants, shrubs and all things pertaining to gardens. At the last meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fidelio C. Sharp, Ralph Hoffman, who is a bird expert, gave a lecture on "Birds in Their Relation to Gardens."

Among the members of the club are Dr. and Mrs. Herman von Schrenk, Dr. von Schrenk being president; Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Terry, Dr. Terry being vice president; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick von Windegger, Mrs. von Windegger being the secretary and treasurer of the club. Others are: Messrs and Mmes. Samuel Plant, E. M. Flesh, Eugenia Angert, J. M. Boyd, Frederick H. Semple, W. J. Polk, C. M. Rice, Warren Goddard, C. L. Whittemore, Edward H. Simmons, Ira Wright, William Matthews, Ralph Hoffmann, J. Boyce Price, Hugh Jones, B. M. Dugan, L. W. Childress, F. C. Sharp, Samuel C. Davis, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Shoemaker, Dr. and Mrs. George Moore, Mrs. George Tittmann, Miss Mary Josephine White; Messrs. F. P. Seltzer and Kelton White.

Many beautiful gardens have resulted from the efforts of this club, and some especially worthy of mention are those of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Plant, whose home, "Easton Farms," is one of the most attractive in the county; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Simmons, Mrs. Simmons being considered an expert on flower gardening; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Angert, whose garden, though quite new, is nevertheless a beautiful one; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Semple, whose home, "Rose Haven," boasts of one of the most attractive gardens. Mr. and Mrs. von Windegger of "Berkemont" are said to have one of unusual beauty, with a color scheme the keynote.

F. P. Seltzer's garden is considered one of the most artistic and unique in or near St. Louis. The winding pathways with their marble seats, its nooks and shrines and arches form a delightful combination until one feels transported to one of the noted Italian gardens.

There are many other beautiful gardens abounding at country homes near St. Louis, which add much to its reputation for being a city of beautiful homes.

The tendency of the sounding-board in any piano is to flatten, thus impairing the original tone.

*Tension Resonator of the Mason & Hamlin is the only device that forever prevents this.

It is the greatest advance in pianoforte construction in a generation, and interests anyone who seeks unequalled beauty of tone and durability in a piano. It makes the Mason & Hamlin piano—bar none!

Does Your Husband Drink? Druggist Tells How to Cure the Liquor Habit at Home

Prescription Can Be Filled at Drug Store and Given

H. J. Brown, a Cleveland man, has for ten years conducted his drug store and relatives despaired over redeeming him. His sister sought him out one day and said she might find something that would cure him. Finally she was rewarded by finding him and gave him a private formula (the same as an old woman told her) which he believed would cure him. When he filled it at the drug store and took it to him secretly. The results were most gratifying and he was soon entirely cured. That was over ten years ago and he has not touched a drop since. He now has a new position of trust and enthusiasm in his efforts to help others. If you have a husband who drinks, see him and let him know that he can best do this by making him the same formula, which guarantees a complete cure.

Liquid. It is harmless, tasteless, odorless and cannot be detected. You can use it without the knowledge of anyone. A lady who recently tried it on her husband, who recently tried it on her husband, and says when I got the powders, and he used to stay up all night, he would agree with me that they might find something that would cure him. Finally she was rewarded by finding him and gave him a private formula (the same as an old woman told her) which he believed would cure him. When he filled it at the drug store and took it to him secretly. The results were most gratifying and he was soon entirely cured. That was over ten years ago and he has not touched a drop since. He now has a new position of trust and enthusiasm in his efforts to help others. If you have a husband who drinks, see him and let him know that he can best do this by making him the same formula, which guarantees a complete cure.

NOTE.—A leading druggist, when asked if there was any specific remedy for the drink habit, said that Tescum is a very effective remedy for the drink habit. It is harmless, won't affect the system and has no dangerous side effects. I advise everyone who wishes to destroy their habits to take a trial of it. It is sold in the city by Enders, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Wolff-Wilson and other first-class druggists.—ADVERTISING.

RETURNING SOLDIERS ARE A BULWARK AGAINST BOLSHEVIKS

the truth, for the military profession stands grounded upon honesty.

"We will cure them of their physical defects. You know how men came to us. You know the proportion of those who were unfit for military service—rather more than 50 per cent through the country as a whole, and of the 50 per cent who were sent to us, some of them ran up about one-third in vice diseases, even after getting by their local boards."

"We take these men into camp, correct all the correctable defects, put them through development battalions, cure them of diseases, and send them back to their communities safe and with better bodies.

"We teach them personal and general sanitation, and we give them talks on national history and Government, simple talks which will make them better citizens. They learn the basic principle of democracy, which is that hand in hand with privilege and opportunity goes obligation. They will come back ready to be effective as well as willing soldiers; and when we get that condition established, it will take a very hardy enemy to force war upon this nation.

"These men will learn something even more important. They will learn to know each other, all groups of our population Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, rich and poor, new-comer and native born. They will stand in the ranks on a footing of absolute equality, stripped of all distinction except the distinction which comes from character, from physique and from education.

"In such groupings, made without reference to previous conditions of life, religion or occupation, the laborer finds the capitalist to be a man like himself, with all a man's troubles with all a man's ambitions, with worries very like his own. All the little cheap prejudices are ironed out, and it will never be possible in the future to group these men against one another, for they find, for the first time in their lives, a real brotherhood of man, which comes from community of purpose, of surroundings and of effort.

"It is worth while, even if we get nothing out of it but that better understanding of the groups of our people—the strongest thing in the world for building up national solidarity.

"There is nothing to be feared in this universal training for national service. It is not a training for war. It is a training against it. It is a training in insurance of peace. One soldier can march through the most skillfully constructed system of national defense of which the English language is capable, without feeling any shock. We must have something besides words. We must have prepared people, prepared not only for peace, but for war."

To Attend Registrars' Meeting, G. W. Lamke, registrar of Washington University, will attend the annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars, at the University of Chicago, April 24-26.

Plant of 1919 Crop Committee.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—One of the largest meetings of the Millers' National Federation was held here yesterday, but resulted in failure to agree on a plan for handling the 1919 wheat crop, which it was estimated would be between 1,250,000,000 and 1,500,000,000. The question of handling the crop was left to a special committee of 15 members, including Samuel Plant of St. Louis, George Milmor, Alton, Ill.; L. E. Moses and E. V. Hoffman, Kansas City.

DISCONTENT REIGNS IN ITALY; AID FROM AMERICA EXPECTED

tobacco that it will receive, and on the day in question a line forms outside the door before the opening hour.

Food was rationed, the amount one was permitted to buy varying in different provinces. On three days a week no meat was permitted to be sold, served or possessed; on certain days no spaghetti, macaroni or other pastes could be used; the making of pastes with eggs was forbidden; all use of sugar in cakes, pastries or deserts was prohibited; the flour used in making bread was mixed with rice, maize, rye and other meals, and the resultant bread was often uneatable, especially as it might not be sold when less than 24 hours old. There was no restriction upon the use of fish, vegetables, fruits, oil or cheese, but often cheese was not to be had; oil almost disappeared from the market and the restriction on the fisheries were so rigid that fish was scarce and very expensive.

In Rome we fared better than elsewhere, except in the matter of bread, for the Roman bread was the worst in Italy. Rome was favored, because there were so many foreigners always in the city that the Government was anxious to create a good impression upon them. We were always able to get milk in Rome, though the quantity was limited and the Mayor appealed to the people several times to use as little milk as possible in order that the hospitals and orphanages might not lack.

In many parts of Italy milk could be bought only on a physician's prescription. The Commandator Felici, Mayor of Ancona, told me that when his 10-year-old daughter was desperately ill with Spanish fever in November he was unable for three weeks to obtain a drop of milk for her. And when the Mayor of a great city cannot get milk for his sick child, what chance has the ordinary person? I tasted butter just four times in nine months, each time in a small town in an agricultural district.

Peasantry Invariably Concealed Food

One Sunday in Rome I was the guest at luncheon of a noble and wealthy Italian Government official and his American wife, and at dinner of a rich sculptor who lives in a beautiful palace. Both my hostesses apologized to me for the meal they served, saying they had for three days been unable to find any meat, and both of them served roasted larks as the only substitute that was obtainable.

But the Contadini, or peasants, in Central Italy at least, have never suffered for lack of food. Under the law they were obliged to report everything they had to the provincial authorities, but almost all of them reported a little less than they had, reserving some flour, oil, wine, cheese and ham for their own use. One night when I, in company with the Mayor, the Sotto-prefetto of Foligno had eaten a delicious supper in the house of an old peasant woman in a village up in the mountains of Umbria, the Sotto-Prefetto said to our hostess:

"There have been so many contraventions of the law in this supper that the only thing I can do is to—forget them all!"

And he added, to me, that it would take the whole Italian army to enforce the law strictly, as it would be contrary to human nature if the Contadini did not conceal some food for their own use.

While it is true that the Contadini of Umbria, Tuscany, the Abruzzi and the Marche always had plenty, it is equally true that those of Calabria, Basilicata and Southern Latium, had not. And although the Sicilians had plenty, the poor of Palermo suffered terribly. If it had not been for the splendid work of the American Red Cross in the districts named there would have been many deaths from starvation.

Some Peasants Grew Rich.

In many parts of Italy the Contadini not only had plenty of food but grew rich on the high prices at which they sold their produce. I saw incontrovertible proof of this at Crotti, Teramo, Ascoti, Piceno and other cities that are centers of great agricultural regions. I noticed an extraordinary number of jewelry shops in these towns, and on Sunday mornings when the farm folk came in to sell their produce and do their shopping these stores were crowded with peasant women buying heavy gold chains and bracelets, diamond earrings and coral necklaces. That tells its own story.

A paradoxical phenomenon in parts of Tuscany is that peasants who have grown so rich through the war that they are able to buy their farms outright have at the same time become Socialists. Usually, when people get rich they grow more conservative, but the Tuscans have a peculiar psychology of their own.

Tuscany has shared with Piedmont the unenviable distinction of being a hotbed of dissatisfaction. Tuscany's contribution to the fighting forces was proportionately far smaller than that of any of the provinces of Southern Italy, and her industrial centers were always full of grumblers, of pessimists, of men and women who would have ended the war at the earliest possible moment on any terms. This does not apply to Florence, so much as to Prato, Piambino, San Giovanni, Val d'Arno and other such manufacturing centers. It is in these places, together with the industrial centers of Piedmont, that Bolshevikism is most likely to break out. The unpatriotic attitude of some in Piedmont is explained by the fact that Giolitti, the statesman who did his best to keep Italy out of the war and who is looked upon by most Italians as pro-German, lives in Turin and virtually rules Piedmont. When State Senator Cottile of New York made a patriotic address in the theater at Turin last July, arousing tremendous enthusiasm, La Stampa, Giolitti's paper, devoted only three lines to its report of it.

"Eels" Really Were Sausages. In January and February some of the higher class restaurants in Rome began evading the restrictive laws. For example, on one of the meatless days, pointing to "eels" on the bill of fare, I asked a waiter how they were cooked. He whispered: "Those eels are sausages." In another restaurant I ordered fried soles, and the waiter confided to me that they were veal cutlets.

Nemo
STANDARD
CORSETS & BRAISSEES

TWENTY-FIVE years of continuous increase in popularity proves that the unprecedented demand for Nemo Corsets is based on real merit.

Their Hygienic-Style Service, which is produced by a chain of patented inventions, has shown definite results in preventing and curing certain physical weaknesses and improving the health and appearance of the wearer. This puts Nemo Corsets in a class by themselves, without rival or competitor.

Their old standard of quality was never changed even through the great world war; and the desire to keep Nemo prices within reach of the popular demand has permitted only very moderate price increases entirely out of proportion to the enormous advance in manufacturing costs.

These are the reasons that Nemo Corsets were never more appreciated than now.

The United Service of Nemo Corsets and Brassieres has five Hygienic Style divisions

Self-Reducing Corsets are made in twenty-one styles for various types of the stout figure. Wonderlift Corsets are made in nine styles for figures of all types. Marvelace Corsets are made in fourteen styles. Kops Corsets are made in eleven styles. KopService Corsets are made in eleven styles for figures of all types. Prices $3.00 to $12.00.

HOW OUR NAVY'S BARRAGE OF MINES STOPPED U-BOATS

were premature explosions of defective mines, at which a ship would actually jump forward when a mine exploded astern. Several times men were knocked down on deck. Some mines exploded only 100 yards astern. These defects were numerous at first, but were eventually cut down to 5 per cent.

Drigibles Overhead as Protectors.

Frequently the explosions would be followed by the visitation overhead of a dirigible, a watch and ward from the skies hovering guard over the squadron to summon the fighting vessels lurking down the horizon. The ships worked at intervals of 500 yards, and sudden fog rolling in on the fleet were troublesome. There was danger of one ship falling behind the others and hitting a mine dropped by one ahead. Such an event had to be taken that the lifting of the fog usually found the ships in better formation than before it settled over them.

When the mine-laying was finished on each trip egg-shaped floats with flags on them were dropped as markers for the future. The picking up of these buoys the next time was a delicate thing. Then there was always the chance that German submarine had come along in the meantime and changed the buoys, so that the ships would hit their own marks.

On the way back to port there was cleaning up to do and the hauling in of the paravanes. Once a paravane seemed to have caught something. It was hauled in and it was found that a 1800-pound porpoise was hanging on it, the knife-like edge having cut into the belly of the cetacean. It was hurriedly cast overboard by the crew before the ship's cook could get hold of it.

It was usually arranged to make port again under cover of night, and in the morning cooling began, which it took from 10 to 18 hours to complete, because of poor lighter facilities. After this there was more cleaning up ship. If this was completed in time there was a field day the second day in port. The third day a new cargo of mines was loaded from four barges at once. Then came shore liberty on the fourth day, and perhaps on the fifth, if the destroyers had not signalled to start out again.

Met Our Battleship Squadron.

The second "excursion" was a proud one for the men of the squadron, as when they reached the open sea they found a fleet of American dreadnaughts, under Rear Admiral Rodman, on the New York, awaiting them to act as their support, and that day our bluejacket hoped more than for his own safety that the Germans would come out with their battle fleet and get what he figured would come to them.

When the little mine-laying squadron passed through Scapa Flow on its way home after the signing of the armistice, the German fleet was interned there. The British trawlers which had been holding the harbor nets in foul weather as well as fair, saw the American vessels coming and broke into loud blasts of their whistles.

Off the entrance the squadron passed the British battle cruiser Lion, speeding back and forth like a sentry post to pound upon any German ship that might make a dash out. Vice Admiral Pakenham, on the Lion, flashed this message to the Americans:

"You take with you not only my personal regards, but the gratitude and admiration of the battle cruiser force."

"When others advertise watches and diamonds on easy payments, think of the originator."

The Aroostook arrived in New York last Thursday and several more of the mine layers are expected there this week, along with the Victory fleet.

Eighteen of the new mine sweepers built by this country are to gather in the mines or blow them up. Two are already over there and the other 16 are on their way. The Dutch and Scandinavian merchants masters have said the presence of the mine barrage is a menace to their peace-time commerce.

Rear Admiral Strauss, who commanded the "Suicide Squadron," said this week before going abroad to direct the removal of the mines that he did not consider them as dangerous as might be thought, as they were constructed to deteriorate after a time and he figured most of them were harmless.

The Doctor's Advice by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given, and the answers should apply to all.

Those wishing further advice, free mail, should address me at my office, Building, College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope. Your name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers, so that they may be obtained at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesalers.

Take a teaspoonful at mealtime and again before going to bed.

H. M. B. writes: "Can you please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of the pain in my head? I have had a great deal of dandruff."

Answer: Many women would be surprised if they knew how to care for their hair, I tell you a very simple remedy, one that will make your hair soft and shiny. It is to wash your hair with warm soaps and lustrous and falling hair. Ask your druggist for a good soap, like yellow Minyol and use according to directions, and you will be surprised to find how soft and shiny it is.

"Fred W. writes: "I suffer with headache, indigestion, nervous debility, and am also thin, almost to the danger point. What can I do?"

Answer: You can very readily overcome these symptoms by taking Hypo-Silane Tablets. They are put up in sealed cartons with full directions. These tablets are made of the best materials and will be sold to you at a low price. When you use them according to directions you will soon be rid of headache, your digestion will be improved, and you will gain from 10 to 30 pounds. These tablets should be taken regularly for several months.

"John W. writes: "I feel as if many remedies for rheumatism that I have at present are not effective. I am always afraid to try any more, but if you can tell me what I can do, I will be greatly relieved."

Answer: Do not be disheartened because you have not been able to find some relief for your rheumatism, for you can be relieved if you will take what I prescribe. GOVERNOR GIVES OUT DEFENSE OF "MUD ROAD" BILL

Gardner Says He Will Not Sign Measure Before Tomorrow, but Approval Is Expected.

LETTER PREPARED BY HIGHWAY BOARD

Counties Will Get Much More Money Than They Put Into State and Federal Road Funds.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12.—In advance of giving his official approval to the McCullough-Morgan "mud road" bill, Gov. Gardner this afternoon gave out for publication a defense for signing the bill prepared by the members of the State Highway Board, all of whom were appointed by him.

The Governor said that he had not officially read the bill and that he probably would not sign it before Monday, but there is no question that he will approve it.

The bill gives to the counties of the State much more money than they pay in to the road fund and will give them State and Federal funds to drag and grade roads, without any cost to the counties.

In its letter the board admits that $60,000 is to be spent in each county for dragging 50 miles of roads, and that there is no obligation on the county to hard surface any road or expend any additional money, though a county has that privilege if it desires.

Provision Overlooked.

The board, in its defense, overlooked one serious provision of the bill permitting a county to spend its funds on less than 50 miles of road, which would permit it to spend its funds on a small stretch of road, without any regard to continuous road system plan.

The letter, which was signed by all the members of the board, follows:

"Your Highway Board, after careful study and consultation with the Hawes road law, enacted at this session of the Legislature, we, as a board, feel that the road law has been strengthened, made more workable and given to the board the authority and power to carry road improvement and road building into every county in the State, for following reasons:

"It gives to the board the initiative, by so doing, it will enable the board to start work and continue same until we have taken advantage of all of Missouri's share of Federal aid.

Defense of Measure.

"After a careful review of the situation, and taking into consideration the various views of all Senators, Representatives and others interested in the improvement of roads in Missouri, it was decided that, if we were able to take care of Missouri's share of Federal aid in the time required by law, it would be necessary to take the State's revenue less the amount used for dragging roads, match that amount against a like amount of Federal aid fund and distribute that fund among the several counties of the State under the supervision of the State Highway Department, after the Bureau of Public Roads had approved the various projects.

"The amendments provide that $1200 per mile shall be used in each county of the State in the preparation of the roads or in building as far as the $1200 per mile will build. This was done in order to insure that we would be able to take care of all the Federal fund allotted to Missouri and at the same time distribute the money as nearly equitably as possible over the State; and further, to build up in Missouri a road sentiment by going into the various towns and actually building roads so that in the future Missouri would eventually have a continuous system of improved roads; and laying the foundation by bringing to grade and putting in culverts and properly draining the roads so built, thus preventing the people of Missouri from a dirt road system. We feel and believe that it means anything but a dirt road system. In other words, we feel that these amendments will mean a hard surfaced road system for Missouri and will do more toward preparing Missouri to hard surface her roads than any educational campaign that could be put on.

"It is true the amendments provide for the improvement of 6000 miles of road at $1200 per mile, or as far as $1200 a mile will go on such improvement. It also means and provides that any county, civil subdivision or interested parties may, at their discretion, if they desire a better road or a higher type road, by furnishing one-half of the cost above $1200 per mile, receive any type of road they desire, better suited only by the needs of the community and the materials at hand; hence it is safe to predict that if this 6000 miles of roads is improved in the way provided, a large percentage of the system will be hard surfaced, and in addition to that, if the $5,500,000 that is left in the treasury subject to the demands of the counties, civil subdivisions or interested parties, is all used, it is reasonable to expect that many miles of hard surfaced road will be the result of that expenditure. In round numbers, that expenditure means $11,000,000 for hard roads in a period of three years.

"If road improvement should cease at the end of three years there might be some cause for alarm and some of the roads improved under Section 8, SA, SB and SC of the amendments might be partially wasted, but after we have spent the available funds it is reasonable to presume that the State will have additional funds coming in from time to time.

"It is also fair to presume that the Federal Government will not cease to help the States in the future if the Federal money now appropriated is judiciously spent in wagon roads and highways; thus the improvement made in the various counties of the State will be a start preparing grades, culverts, laying out a system, proper surveys will be made, the best locations found and such other preliminary work that will be of great value to the State highway department and to the counties of the State.

"It means that all the roads will be built under the jurisdiction of the State highway department and no project can be started until it has the approval of the Federal bureau of public roads at Washington, which will insure that the funds will be frittered away individuals, but will be used in a wise way, bringing results for the money spent.

"It means that the department will contact with every State and construct in that county, thus giving great attention to road needs.

GRIDDLE CAKES

of, when you use

CALUMET BAKING POWDER "BEST BY TEST"

The greatest advancement ever made in the manufacture of baking powder—so perfectly made that you're always sure of the very best baking results. Its leavening strength never varies. The last spoonful as good as the first. No failures. It raises the quality of your bakings and reduces baking costs.

It is sold at a moderate price and you use only half as much as of most other powders.

A product of the world's largest, finest, most sanitary baking powder factory. Used in the U. S. Army and Navy—by the most eminent Domestic Scientists—in more homes than any other brand. Its superiority has made it America's leading seller.

CALUMET GRIDDLE CAKES

- 2—Level cups flour
- 2—Level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- 1½—Teaspoon salt
- 1—Level tablespoon sugar
- 2—Level tablespoons melted shortening
- 2—Eggs, yolks
- 1½—Cups milk or water

How to Make Them: Mix dry ingredients in flour. Beat egg yolks and melted shortening in the liquid, add only a part of the liquid, mix until smooth. Then add gradually the balance of the liquid until batter is of the proper consistency. According to the strength of the flour more or less liquid is required. Bake on hot griddle well greased.

Paste in your Recipe Book for future reference.

Have You Noticed This?

When you buy a pound of Calumet you get a full pound—16 oz. Some high priced baking powders are now being put on the market in 12-oz. cans instead of a pound. Be sure you are getting a pound when you want it. No short weights with Calumet.

this time will be wasted. We wish to repeat that all such improvement must be done in a substantial way and manner subject to the approval of the State and Government engineers, and in addition, that law provides that no county, civil subdivision or interested party can receive aid on a road that does not provide means for maintaining such road. It further provides that the county shall levy and collect 25 cents on the one hundred dollar valuation for road purposes before aid can be given to such county, civil subdivision or individual, and the penalty for not maintaining a road improved by State and Federal aid is that the said county shall receive no more State and Federal aid until they put the improved roads in question in proper shape.

"This insures as far as possible the maintenance of the roads thus improved and should satisfy all that the money thus spent will not be wasted.

"Some have the impression that the amendments simply give to the counties $1200 per mile, which is erroneous for the reason that the counties receive $5,500,000 in addition to the $1200 per mile for hard surfacing roads where counties, civil subdivisions or interested parties, co-operate with the State Department and in addition all the roads are either dirt, gravel, macadam or paved, meet the approval of the State Highway Department and the Bureau of Public Roads, and must be built under the jurisdiction of the State highway engineer, and the Federal inspectors who will have absolute control of all construction work."

Officer in Charge of Army Recruiting Office Here Is Old-Time Indian Fighter

Col. Cornelius C. Smith, in Active Service Since 1890, Has Fought Insurrectionists in Philippines and Was in Cuba—Never Wounded.

Col. Cornelius C. Smith, Tenth Cavalry, U. S. A., who has been in St. Louis in charge of the army recruiting office for this district since March, when it opened, is one of the old-time and distinguished Indian fighters. He comes from the West, and is the son of an Indian fighter. He has been on active service in the army since 1890, having enlisted at that time at Fort Missoula, Mont., and has the Congressional Medal of Honor for gallantry.

Col. Gilbert C. Smith, his father, was stationed at Heleka, Mont., when his son enlisted. He was Quartermaster in St. Louis during the Spanish-American War, handling all supplies that passed through here, and dying when on duty here in 1898.

Col. Cornelius Smith's active campaigning against the Indians was rather short, but in it he won the Medal of Honor. He was a Corporal in the Sixth Cavalry of Fort Winnebago, N. M., and in the winter of 1890-91 was employed with his regiment in pursuing a band of marauding Sioux Indians through the North country. For five days he was with his company, carrying 47 men carrying ammunition for the larger force, and on New Year's day, 1891, 150 Sioux attacked the troop at 11 a.m. The weather was quite cold and the ground was snow-covered. The attack was at Little Grass Creek, near its confluence with the White River, South Dakota.

Describes Indian Fight.
"We fought until 2 p.m., when reinforcements came up," Col. Smith told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "It was hardly true Indian fighting, being 'sort of' in the open. The Sioux had us wedged in between the creek and the river, with the object of capturing our ammunition, as the chief told our Captain when peace was made."

"During the fight I saw several Indians making rushes to get behind us. I was with three men on the extreme left of our position, and I led them with a rush in among the Indians. We had a little private affair, in which the Indians were killed. We followed them quite a way in order to break up their game, and were successful. The troop might have had bad losses if we had not taken that action."

It was for this deed that Congress bestowed the Medal of Honor on the Corp. Smith of those days. One of the three privates was awarded the certificate of merit. Two of the officers of the troop earned the medal in the same campaign.

Seven Years in Philippines.
Col. Smith was never wounded in all his campaigns, but said he had some narrow escapes. As a boy he suffered all the vicissitudes of the West, including the occasional times when the Apaches "shot up" the town. He was born in Tucson, Ariz., April 8, 1869, being now 50 years old. He enlisted the day after his birthday in 1888, and during the past week celebrated the recurrence of these two red letter dates.

During the Philippine pacification Col. Smith spent seven years in the islands, and was Governor of two districts of the Moro province. Under Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding general of the province, Smith governed the district of Cotabato in 1906. Under Gen. Pershing he governed the Lanao district from 1910 to 1912. He translated a Spanish-Moroccan into English-Moro, and it was published by the War Department for use by the army among the natives and the troops.

"My service under Gen. Wood and Pershing was really the best I had," Col. Smith said. "As civil governor of the Moros in my district, my duties were very interesting. We had to teach them all the ways and manners of civilization. We had white civilians and some of Dato Ali's former headmen as instructors. I handled the police of the district in maintaining law and order. We had the constabulary and the regular troops for this."

Fought Insurrectionists.

Col. Smith was a Captain throughout his Philippine service from 1901, and until 1916. He took part in numerous "affairs" with the Filipino insurrectionists. In charge of a picked unit of 125 men, part of a force of four times that number sent by Gen. Wood in pursuit of the notorious Dato Ali, he spent some time in 1904-05 campaigning in the islands. The expedition was unsuccessful, but Ali was killed by another detachment about a year later. Smith was in the Fourteenth Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex., were organized, trained and commanded by Col. Smith during the present war. Lately he has been in command of the Tenth (negro) Cavalry. His work as a leader in training prevented him from going to France. He said that about 35 per cent of the regular army officers did get overseas.

Col. Smith was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in two and a half years after his enlistment, at a time when it was not common for a man to rise from the ranks. During the period of our Mexican trouble, which campaign Col. Smith participated in he was made a Major. In June, 1917, he was promoted to a Lieutenant-Colonel, and two months later again promoted to be a full Colonel, but only for the duration of the emergency.

In a six-inch strip of service emblems, Col. Smith has ribbons indicative of four campaigns and of his possession of the Medal of Honor.

The army recruiting stations were all closed last August because the draft was so extended as to procure all eligible fighters. Col. George

New Officers Here.

A month ago the station was reopened by Col. Smith, since preparations are being made for a full peace-strength regular army. Besides, a national campaign is under way to enlist 50,000 men to replace those lost on Next Page.

BEACH BANKRUPTCY ACTION WITHDRAWN BY AGREEMENT

Creditors stipulate that Receiver and Attorneys in Case Be Paid Certain Amounts.

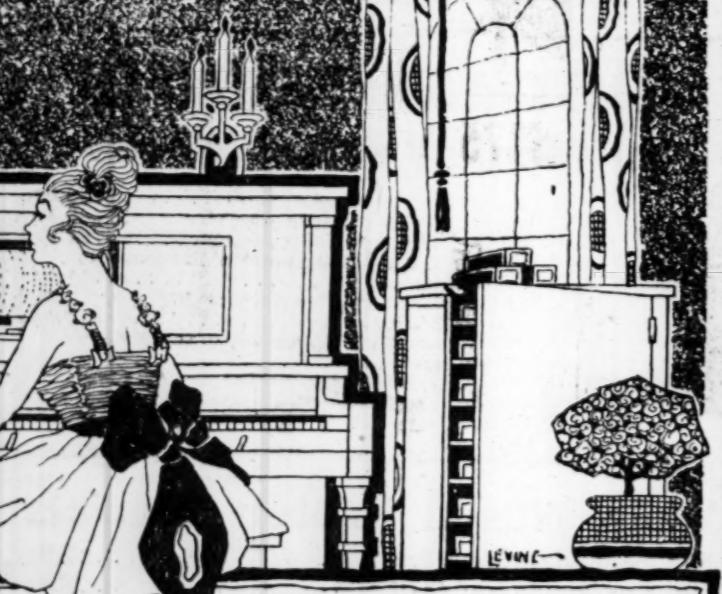

A bankruptcy proceeding filed in January in the United States District Court against Edward F. Beach, individually, and trading as the St. Louis Rubber Cement Co., was withdrawn yesterday by creditors under stipulation that attorneys involved in the case and the temporary receiver, Thomas G. Rutledge, be paid certain sums.

The withdrawal of the suit followed several conferences of the litigants and an offer of compromise by Beach of a percentage of his indebtedness which was tentatively accepted. Under the present arrangement Rutledge will receive a fee of $750. Arthur V. Lashly, attorney for Rutledge will receive $500. O'Neill Ryan, attorney for Beach, $1500, and three appraisers $25 each. It is also stipulated that Frank K. Hadley, a creditor, be paid a claim of $2000 immediately.

WHY SO MUCH CRIME? TOO FEW POLICEMEN, SAYS CHIEF O'BRIEN

Force Not Increased in 13 Years--Only 360 Men at a Time to Protect 65 Square Miles of City

1109 BURGLARIES
AND 218 HOLDUPS
SINCE JANUARY 1

In Addition There Have Been 25 Safe Robberies and Many Thefts by "Truck" Burglars.

BLAME NOT PUT ON UNDER-EMPLOYMENT

Chief of Detectives Says
Large Number of Youths Have Taken Up Crime as Pastime.

Investigation by Post-Dispatch reports at police headquarters shows that since Jan. 1 there have been 1109 burglaries in the city, 218 hold-ups, 315 automobile thefts, 25 safe robberies, and thefts by "truck" burglars of merchandise valued at $46,574.98. The estimated total value of loot taken in various forms of robberies was $161,335.11. Two citizens, one policeman and a private watchman have been killed by highwaymen.

Feb. 17—John D. Conley, 4036
Easton avenue, shot and killed in a saloon at Wayne and Easton avenues, an hour before he was to appear in court as prosecuting witness in a robbery case.

Feb. 25—Patrolman William Hayes, Carr Street District, shot and killed by a negro highwayman at Twentieth street and Lucas avenue.

March 6—Mrs. Olive Hussman, 5142 Waterman avenue, held up in her home in the forenoon by two highwaymen, who took jewelry valued at $1,000.

March 7—Sigfried-Roehrig Parts Co., 821 Lucas avenue, robbed of stock valued at $3,000.

March 8—Fred Scherer, saloon
15 and escaped in an automobile.

The running board of the machine was off and gone like a flash.

"Then there's the truck burglars.
The automobile has given them a wide range. The policemen on the beats are working hard to catch them, but they're at a disadvantage."

"The situation in St. Louis is just this:

"The police force has not been increased since 1907. St. Louis has grown wonderfully since then, has added materially to its population, building, etc.—and to the automobile development.

"The department has not been increased. We have on the force a total working of 1250 men. Take from this the men we have on special details, in offices and on patrol streets, and it gives me 1000 men as a basis. Take those men off retention and shop, from this number and it leaves me 800 uniform and plain clothes men a day to cover 65 square miles of territory.

"That's 300 men to cover the city for each eight hours of their tour, in addition to 60 detectives who are on duty 16 hours a day and subject to call at any time during the other eight hours.

"We're doing the best we can with that force. We need more men and need them badly. We're hand-capped, but we are watching every-angle."

Quiet During the War.

The Chief said that during the war most of the young men of the country were away from the cities
in training camps or across the ocean.
There was a general quiet all over the country, he said. "This war
gaged the attention of everyone.
Crimes were committed but they did not attract the attention they do now.
Now the war is over. The things are coming back. Business is astir again. Things are moving.
The crooks, like the rest, are moving too. The result is an increase in employment over the period of the duration of the war. Before the war we had just as much, if not more, crime, than we have now. I believe the records of the department will bear out this statement."

"This is the hardest town I ever got into," the Chief quoted Thompson as saying. "If ever I get out of St. Louis you'll never see me again."

"If fellows like that tell you 'It's hard' here they mean it," said the Chief. "We are trying to make it as hard for that and any other class of crooks in St. Louis as possible."

The police point to the fact that most of the young men of the country were away from the cities
in training camps or across the ocean.

"There was a general quiet all over the country, he said. "This war
gaged the attention of everyone.
Crimes were committed but they did not attract the attention they do now.
Now the war is over. The things are coming back. Business is employment over the period of the duration of the war. Before the war we had just as much, if not more, crime,

than we have now. I believe the records of the department will bear
out this statement."

"The Chief said that the records show that with the exception of the "truck burglars," who have become active lately, crime in St. Louis in a recent year—1916—is in some instances greater than in the past three months.

Chief O'Brien says 500 additional police could be used to good effect in holding down crime. That number would cost the city $600,000 annually.

Chief of Detectives Powerless.

Take the recent Baden Bank robbery as an instance. There were eight men in a seven-passenger Hudson automobile. Foot policemen were on the job a few minutes after the robbery occurred. The only autos available were machines of much less power than the thieves were using. What's the result? The thieves outstripped the police and got away.

In the holdup of Mrs. Hussman at Waterman avenue, there was another example. I'm told that in that robbery that when the robbers left the Hussman home they took a few seconds to get to the auto awaiting them and as soon as they stepped on

Sensational Crimes That Have Attracted Unusual Attention

Since Jan. 1, last, the following crimes were committed under such circumstances as to attract unusual public attention:

Jan. 3—Porter E. White, safebreaker and ex-convict, shot and beaten to death in the house of Mrs. Frances E. Posey, 4446 Lindell boulevard. Roy Hallett, 34, Stratford Hotel, shot and killed in his room by one of three men with whom he had been playing dice.

Jan. 4—Bishop Daniel Tuttle, 82 years old, held up by two youths and robber of his watch, valued at $215, and a small amount of money.

Jan. 16—Kessler's fur store, 511 Olive street, robbed of furs valued at $1100.

Jan. 25—Otto Bauer, 46, 5161 Page boulevard, manager of a Kroger store at Compton and Eastern avenues, shot and killed in the store by a highwayman.

Feb. 17—John D. Conley, 4036 Easton avenue, shot and killed in a saloon at Wayne and Easton avenues, an hour before he was to appear in court as prosecuting witness in a robbery case.

Feb. 25—Patrolman William Hayes, Carr Street District, shot and killed by a negro highwayman at Twentieth street and Lucas avenue.

March 6—Mrs. Olive Hussman, 5142 Waterman avenue, held up in her home in the forenoon by two highwaymen, who took jewelry valued at $1,000.

March 7—Sigfried-Roehrig Parts Co., 821 Lucas avenue, robbed of stock valued at $3,000.

March 8—Fred Scherer, saloon

arrests and of this number 1360 were persons between 20 and 30 years; 923 between 30 and 40 years; 472 between 16 and 20 and 238 under 16 years of age.

For March the total arrests numbered 3863 with 1428 between 20 and 30 years of age. The nearest figure to that was 988 of persons between 30 and 40 years. Between 16 and 20 years the offenders numbered 453 and under 16 years 253.

Police officials called attention to regular visits of policemen and detectives to saloons, pool rooms, restaurants and other places where known police characters are wont to go. Every one found, who cannot give a good explanation of his presence there, is arrested and an effort made to show if he is connected with others. Detectives also stop suspicious characters on the streets, rightly, and search them for weapons. This is one of the police planes in the campaign against highway robbery and burglaries.

The declaration also is made by police officials that the "fence" (police term for clearing house for stolen goods) no longer exists in the Missouri penitentiary.

There are a number of crooks in the prison who rank high in their criminal careers, but many of them will not discuss their careers, even with their cell-mates, and the statements of others could not be believed, and probably would not be made to mislead an inquirer.

Warden Porter Glavin, whose position was a disciplinary officer in the prison for 20 years, has made him familiar with all that pertains to his dishonest guests, selected for this interview Ed Halligan, a diamond thief, and Benjamin Isaacson, who from the time he was eight years old until his last birthday, which was his 42d, has been a pickpocket, both have operated in nearly every large city in America and other countries, and both have served terms in various prisons.

Halligan is nearly 60 years old, but looks 45. His face is slender, and he is hairless, bald and bald on top. He talks like an educated man. He grasped quickly what was wanted by the interviewer. His discussion of the question showed that he reads the newspapers carefully and is familiar with the criminal situation in the major cities.

"Everybody that reaches St. Louis from the East (and most of the crooks come from those bridges) comes across one of those bridges. It would be easy to patrol trains and stations and railroad yards with experienced coppers so that it would be almost impossible to get into town."

Both Chief Hannegan and Detective Sergeant Albert Helmholz, who has charge of the work of the automobile squads, believe new laws in process of enactment, if passed, will greatly reduce the traffic in stolen automobiles.

St. Louis has a great natural advantage for the prevention of crime waves, in the Mississippi River, Halligan said. When asked how he would take advantage of the river if he were in charge of the police department, he said:

"I would stop all the automobiles stolen since Jan. 1, the police department reports all but 68 machines recovered by the work of the automobile squads both in St. Louis and in neighboring Illinois cities. In 1917 more than 200 stolen automobiles were never recovered.

"The chief thing is the police force. If the police force is rotten or crooked, or both, the city is considered 'safe'."

Halligan has served four years of a 12-year term for a theft of jewelry from the Buckingham Hotel in St. Louis. He told frankly of having "made" large Eastern hotels in his "work," and one of his escapades resulted in separating Gen. George W. Goethals, a fellow-guest, from a number of personal valuables.

NAMES OF 79 OFFICERS AND MEN OF 89TH DIVISION WHO GOT DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS

Fourteen of Number So Honored Are Dead—Privates Total 27, Sergeants 19 and Corporals 10—26 Officers.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Records of citations for bravery made available by the War Department to date show that 79 Distinguished Service Crosses have been awarded to officers and enlisted men of the Eighty-ninth (Middle West) Division. Fourteen of the number so honored are dead.

RENNETTE, Bantheville, Beauclair, St. Mihiel, Barricourt, Pouilly, Beaufort—these are some of the names that will live in the traditions of the Eighty-ninth. They occur frequently in the citations, as places where the citizen soldiers from Camp Funston performed deeds of extraordinary valor. The dates in a number of the citations indicate that the division was in touch with the enemy and fighting desperately up to the last minute before the armistice.

37 Privates Won D. S. C.

Private soldiers won more of the medals than any other rank. Their total was 27. Sergeants received 16, Corporals 10, First Lieutenants 10, Second Lieutenants nine, Majors five. One was awarded to a Colonel of the division and one to a Lieutenant-Colonel.

The Eighty-Ninth Division contains the names of many of the men who were drafted from Missouri. One regiment, the 35th Missouri, with several of its crosses—is to a large extent a St. Louis unit.

The division is now in the army of occupation and is scheduled to sail in June. It was recently chosen, because of its fine fighting record, as one of the divisions whose names will be retained in the peace-time army organization. Headquarters will be at Camp Funston.

List of Winners.

Following is a list of the division's winners of the cross, with the place and date of their heroism for which it was won, and the name and address of the next of kin:

MUSIC in the Piping Times of PEACE

MUSIC

Inseparably Associated with EASTER

Music is the means that has been adopted throughout the ages for communicating the joy of the Easter message.

The spirit of the festival is more inspiringly expressed by the music that has always accompanied it than by any other single medium.

The Easter message is conveyed to man's mind by the spoken word of the pulpit and the printed word of the Book but is impressed on his heart by the wordless voice of music.

For music reaches our innermost selves, taps a channel leading to our higher nature and brings us in tune with the Infinite.

Millions go to church on Easter simply to hear the Easter music. They are reached through music as they are not reached in any other way.

Music speaks the language of the soul, but it likewise speaks the language of life—the language of the heart.

When we speak from the depths of our religious nature, we have recourse to music and we sing our praises to God.

When we are stirred by any emotion in secular life, we likewise resort to music for its expression. We sing love songs and patriotic songs. We sing songs of sadness and songs of gladness—songs of home and songs of childhood, and our nature responds and vibrates with the magic of the message brought to us.

Music transfuses joy and softens sorrow.

It should shed its blessings in every home.

Buy a piano, a player piano or a phonograph and celebrate this Easter with music in your own home and provide the means whereby music may be an ever available friend and companion.

Rugs Are Risky Playgrounds —If Not Regularly Hoover'd

Call to mind the great quantity of unwholesome filth that is tracked in from the street and buries itself in your rugs.

Disease germs find in that dirt a snug lodging. It affords an ideal place in which to multiply their pestilence. There your little ones play upon that unhealthy mess. Their fingers and toys comb the carpet-nap and stir up the germ-laden dirt. Particles of it are breathed—or swallowed via the "hand-to-mouth" route.

Don't risk your children's health. Have your rugs beaten, thoroughly swept and wholesomely freshened—indoors and at frequent intervals. All you need do is—

JUST RUN YOUR HOOVER

The Hoover sweeps up all lint, threads and hairs. It swallows the pins, buttons, strings, scraps, etc.—first!

Great volumes of air are drawn through the carpet, taking away the beaten out, swept-up dirt and giving the carpet a thorough "airing."

Only The Hoover, however, does all the foregoing. May we explain why only The Hoover beats and thoroughly sweeps besides suction cleaning—in one operation?

500 EXPECTED AT RIVER CONVENTION HERE THIS WEEKSessions Will Open at Hotel Statler Thursday and Continue Two Days—Senator Spencer to Speak.*SIX CONGRESSMEN PROMISE TO ATTEND

Mayors of Mississippi Valley Cities Will Hold Special Dinner Meeting to Discuss Subject of Docks.

Approximately 500 delegates are expected to attend the second annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association, which will open at the Hotel Statler next Thursday for a two days' session.

Mayor Kiel will welcome the delegates and will be followed by United States Senator Spencer, who will deliver the keynote speech of the convention. Senator Spencer will speak on "The Vital Importance of Transportation," dwelling on the nation's duty with regard to the development of waterways to meet the transportation needs of the United States.

Will Voice Civilization's Ideas.

The ideas of the officials of the organization will be voiced by him in urging upon Congress the immediate completion of all river projects in the Mississippi Valley that have already been approved by Congress. The setting aside at once of a lump appropriation for this work will be welcome.

The plan to improve the Illinois River from the drainage canal at Lockport to St. Louis probably will be approved by the convention. This project, it is estimated, will cost something like $15,000,000. An additional $25,000,000, it is estimated, will be required to complete the Mississippi River projects from Minneapolis to St. Louis, while the amount required for the Ohio River project from Pittsburgh to Cairo is $23,265,000. The Missouri River project from Kansas City to St. Louis will require $12,300,000.

A plan to petition Congress to appoint a special committee, with full authority to complete this work at the earliest possible time, and to ask Congress to enact legislation necessary to compel railroads to co-ordinate and co-operate with waterway transportation, is being considered by the officials of the Waterways Association.

Congressmen to Attend.

Congressmen who have accepted invitations to attend the convention are: Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, J. W. Alexander, San G. Major and William T. Bland, and Cleveland A. Newton; L. C. Dyer and William Igoc of St. Louis. All the Congressmen of the Mississippi Valley have been invited. It is expected they will hold a special meeting to discuss waterway conditions. United States Senator Kenneth D. McKellar of Memphis also will be present.

Mayors of cities in the Mississippi Valley who will attend will hold a special dinner meeting at the Hotel Statler Thursday at 6:30 p. m., when Mayor Kiel will preside. They will discuss the necessity for modern municipal docks.

Thursday at noon the delegates will be guests at a luncheon at the Statler, given by the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Exchange. At this luncheon John Barnett, Director-General of the Pan-American Union, of Washington, and Senator McKellar will be the speakers.

WARRANTS AGAINST ALLEGED STOLEN GOODS BUYERS REFUSED

Prosecuting Attorney Ascertains That Accused Persons Had Complied With Regulations.

Warrants were refused yesterday by the Prosecuting Attorney in the cases brought by detectives against Benjamin Rothman, a merchant at 1707 Market street; Otto Schmidt, a pawnbroker at 2348 Olive street, and Thomas Lewis, a postcard photographer, at 1613 Market street, all of whom were arrested Thursday afternoon after Elvold Shields, 14 years old, negro, of 4367 Cote Brilliante avenue, who confessed to being a porch climbing burglar, pointed them out to detectives as men to whom he sold stolen goods.

Two rings which the detectives valued at $300, were sold to Rothman, a watch to Schmidt and a kodalite to Lewis. These prices were inflated, it developed, and it also developed that the merchandise conformed to the regulations covering such purchases. The police asked for warrants for buying stolen goods from a minor. Rothman declares he declined to purchase the rings, which he says were worth about $30, when the negro first called, but when the boy returned with a note purporting to be from his sick mother, he took the rings from him, registered his name and address and at once notified the regular pawnshop detectives who at that time had no record of the burglary.

500,000 motorists are using Gates Half-Sole Tires. They cost 15¢ as much, 3500 miles guaranteed. Investigate. 1200 Locust street.—Adv.

MEN FROM COUNTY IN WAR

Statistics Show That Number Was 4314, With 100 Deaths.

Figures compiled by R. G. Russell, superintendent of the St. Louis County schools, show that the county sent 4314 men to war and that the death list totals 100. These figures will be included in a report to be made to the Legislature at its request.

The number furnished from the various towns of the county and the number of those who died follows:

Webster Groves, 534—9; Maplewood, 465—12; Kirkwood, 401—11; Wellston, 310—2; Ferguson, 186—7; University City, 181—4; Hancock, 181—6; Valley Park, 115—5; Clayton, 117—3; Eureka, 28—0.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a dark brown taste, a bad breath, a dull, listless, no good feeling, constipation, etc., of the liver, bad digestion, or simply faints.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week.

Dramatic and Musical Events of the Week

PRESENT "THE CANARY"

Insolia Julia and Frolicsome Joseph in New Musical Comedy at American.

With the Shubert-Jefferson idea of a week's interest in things theatrical will open at the American, here Insolia Julia and Joseph with the musical comedy "The Canary." The original production at Charles Dillingham's Globe Theater, New York, is promised, including every one of the redoubtable brush Joseph Urban. The two stars will be supported by such notables in their field as Sam Hardy, Doyle and Ixon and Maude Eburne, whose character playing of an Irish maid attracted considerable notice, one of the musical numbers is by an English and Irving Berlin.

Cawthorn has the part of an artificer of fake antiques in an art shop, he is ambitious to become a magician. This hobby provides him with excellent opportunities for characteristic fun-making; of course, he is a critical song that's his hobby. "That Little German Band," Insolia's role is that of a young painter, not too devoted to the art to give attention to the sister's of singing and dancing. They get its name from a famous among "The Canary," which has nothing else to do with the art. It is an English adaptation of French farce, by George Barr and Louis Arnould, and had a run of six months in New York.

Beginning next Sunday night, the Shubert-Jefferson will present Barry Bernard and Alexander Carr in a third of the Potash-Perlmutter musical "Business Before Pleasure," which the present indications are, will close the season at that playhouse. During the same week the American will be given over to a minstrel show, headed by Neil O'Brien.

The Orpheum bill this week will be led by Bessie Clayton in an ambitious dancing act, "The 1919 Revue," in which she will be assisted by Elisa and Eduardo, Spanish dancers, and a company. Mlle. Nita Jo, soon to be a favorite in Parisian society balls, will make her first St. Louis appearance in a sketch called "La Gorgette Parisienne" in which she does Apache songs and dances.

The five MacLarens, Scotch entertainers, are headliners on the Columbia bill this week, and at the Grand the leading feature will be the Colonial Musical Misses. Beginning Thursday, the Garrick will present "The Mimic World," an act lasting an hour, given by a numerous company. The Gayety will present Lew Kelly's "Big Show," and the Standard "The Pennant Winners."

W. U. GLEE CLUB'S ITINERARY

Will Be Heard in St. Louis After Trip on May 9.

C. E. Staudinger, manager of the Washington University Glee and Mandolin Clubs, has returned from a trip on which he completed the itinerary for the annual tour, April 28-May 3. In point of mileage it will be the most extended tour the club has ever made, and the number of concerts to be given will equal any previous year.

The first appearance will be at Mexico, Mo., April 28. On April 29 they will be again at Webster's Soda-House, April 30; May 1, Kansas City; May 2, Joplin; May 3, Springfield, and return home Sunday morning, May 4.

Staudinger announced April 25 as the definite date of the concert at East St. Louis, and May 4 for the St. Louis concert, in Moolah Temple.

FRENCH ARMY BAND AT COLISEUM ON APRIL 21

Noted Organization Led by Capt. Ferdinand Pollain, Winner of War Cross.

One of the first organizations of the kind is the reputation of the French Army Band, which will give a concert at the Coliseum on the evening of April 21. It is making a tour of the United States under the auspices of the French High Commission.

The leader is Capt. Ferdinand Pollain, who maintains the French tradition that the leaders of its important bands must be scholarly musicians. He is a graduate of the famous Paris Conservatory, where he carried off honors in 1898 at the same time as did Jacques Thibaut and Alfred Cortot, now famous as violinist and pianist respectively. Capt. Pollain is a violoncello virtuoso, and at one time was a member of a trio which in addition comprised the celebrated violinist, who is now conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, and Raoul Pugno, pianist.

It was in 1904 that Pollain was chosen to direct the band in succession to Mr. Fares, who conducted the organization, then called the Garde Republicaine band, when it played in St. Louis during the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Capt. Pollain and four sons one of whom was killed and another wounded, fought in the war. He was wounded twice and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre in 1915.

The program, which is for the benefit of French war charities, will be as follows:

- 1. (a) Star Spangled Banner.
- (2) Marseillaise.
- 2. Overture to "Phedre"—Massenet.
- 3. Violin solo, "Rondo Capriccioso"—Saint-Saens; Alexandre Debrille.
- 4. (a) "March of the Little Lead Soldiers"—Pierne.
- (b) American Patrol—Meacham.
- 5. Piano solo—Dukas.
- 6. Etude en forme de Valse—Saint-Saens. Georges Truc.
- 7. Ballet music from "Sylvia"—Delibes.
- 8. (a) Le Père de la Victoire—Ganne.
- (b) Marche de Sambre et Meuse—Planquette.

The local appearance of the band will be under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, the Société Française, the Advertising Club of St. Louis, and other organizations.

CITY IS TO PRESENT

FLAG TO ENRICO CARUSO

Ceremony to Attend Tenor's Visit Here for Coliseum Recital, May 2.

Much ceremony will attend the impending visit of Enrico Caruso to this city. The tenor, generally recognized as the foremost of living singers, will be here two days, May 1 and 2, and on the evening of the second day will give at the Coliseum his first recital in St. Louis. The occasion will also mark his first appearance here in eight years.

A flag will be presented to him on behalf of the city, and elaborate exercises are being planned for the event. Secretary of the Treasury Glass, who is to be in the city at the time attending the sessions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has been invited to make the first presentation speech.

An orchestra of 70 musicians, recruited in St. Louis, will accompany the singer and play a symphonic program in the intervals between his numbers. They will be directed by Roberto Maronuzzi, leading conductor of the Metropolitan Opera House.

It is announced that in the first week of the ticket sales orders have flowed in from all over from parts of Missouri and from St. Louis, but from Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Illinois. All the boxes, it is said, have already been sold.

Caruso's program has not yet been decided upon, save that his opening number will probably be "Celeste Aida," which will be pleasing news to his numerous phonographic following.

The tenor, at the age of 48, in the prime of his vocal powers and at the height of his fame, celebrated on March 22 the twenty-fifth anniversary of his debut on the operatic stage. On that date in 1894 he appeared as an old carpenter with a beard in an opera called "L'Amico Francesco," by a rich Neapolitan amateur named Alberto Franchetti. Caruso was paid $2 for the evening's work.

The leader is Capt. Ferdinand Pollain, who maintains the French tradition that the leaders of its important bands must be scholarly musicians. He is a graduate of the famous Paris Conservatory, where he carried off honors in 1898 at the same time as did Jacques Thibaut and Alfred Cortot, now famous as violinist and pianist respectively. MRS. MARION CROWELL
OBTAINS HER DIVORCE

She is to Receive $100 Month Alimony and Her Maiden Name is Restored.

Mrs. Marion Bond Crowell, daughter of Judge Henry W. Bond of the Missouri Supreme Court, obtained a divorce yesterday in Judge Kimmel's court from William de Forest Crowell, 14 North King's highway, an architect. Alimony of $100 a month was granted, and the plaintiff's maiden name was restored. Crowell did not contest the suit.

His wife testified that he had failed to properly support her, although he said her income was in excess of $100 a month. She was forced to get money from her parents with which to buy clothing, she said. She further testified that he indulged in fits of temper in her presence. Once, without any reason, she said, he struck her while she was driving their automobile.

The Crowells' wedding, Dec. 26, 1915, was a social event. Their engagement had been announced the August previous and in October Mrs. Bond had announced that the engagement was off. However, they began to appear in public together again shortly afterward. Mrs. Crowell is 22 years old and Crowell is 42. Their separation took place Oct. 1, 1918. A separate maintenance suit filed by Mrs. Crowell was dismissed by her when she brought the divorce proceedings.

Committee Named to Secure Fire Protection for Town.

The Board of Aldermen of Valley Park at its first meeting after the annual election of April 1, appointed a committee to take steps at once toward securing adequate fire protection for the town. Owing to the lack of proper fire apparatus, insurance rates are high, and companies often refuse to take risks at any premium.

The board unanimously confirmed the appointment of Glenn Jones as City Attorney, and Mayor Robert P.

TO ESTABLISH COLLEGE FOR SPIRITUALISM

Lawyer Who Consulted Mediums Leaves $500,000 for Purpose —Found Dead With $10,000 on Person.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
FORT WORTH, Tex., April 12.—An estate valued at almost $500,000 is bequeathed to the National Spiritualist Association in the will of John L. Jackson of Fort Worth, who was found dead, Tuesday, in an automobile near Evant, Tex. By the terms of the will the estate must be used in the establishment of a college to train Spiritualist ministers. It is probable that the college will be located in Fort Worth.

Jackson, a bachelor, was 62 years old. He left Fort Worth Monday in an automobile on a business trip to Lampasas. He was about two miles out of Evant when he died of apoplexy. He was found in his car by H. Y. Price, City Marshal at Evant. On his person was about $10,000.

Advice From Spirits.
Fort Worth Spiritualists allege that Jackson made much of his fortune through advice given him by mediums. He was a regular visitor to the home of C. L. Sharp, pastor of the First Worth Spiritualist Church, where he would go to seek advice on business deals. A friend business friend of Jackson's died years ago. It is said by the Spiritualists that when Jackson would be perplexed about some financial problem, he would go to a medium to have the spirit of the friend summoned for advice. The advice was always followed by Jackson.

For 10 years Jackson was president of the Fort Worth Spiritualist Church. He also acted as usher for a number of years.

Was Retired Lawyer.
During his younger life, Jackson taught school in Parker and Tarrant Counties, studying law at night. He was admitted to the bar and practiced up to 10 years ago, when he retired. He was a lover of travel and had been around the world several times.

Most of the $500,000 estate willed to the Spiritualists by Jackson represented in real estate in Parker and Tarrant Counties, and in stock in 35 Texas banks. He was a director in many of them. Jackson's nearest survivor is a brother, William Jackson of Los Angeles, who was well remembered in the will.

George B. Warren of Washington, D. C., president of the National Spiritualist Association, is made treasurer of the estate without bond. He will be here in a few days to take charge of the estate, according to a telegram received from him Friday.

PHYSICIAN'S WILL UPHELD, CASE TAKEN FROM JURY

Brothers Contended That Man Who Killed Himself Was of Unsound Mind.

The will of Dr. Granville Elisha Whittlesey, who shot himself Dec. 24, 1917, at his office, 1455 Chouteau avenue, was sustained Friday by Circuit Judge Ferriss in a contest filed by testator's two brothers, Charles F. Whittlesey, 4557 Newport avenue, and Comfort S. Whittlesey of Durango, Colo.

Dr. Whittlesey left the bulk of his estate to Mrs. Mabel Gerding, 1018 Dolman street, and her two children, and it was alleged by the plaintiffs that he was of unsound mind and influenced by Mrs. Gerding in the matter of making his will. One of Dr. Whittlesey's alleged peculiarities cited in the case was that he believed he held frequent communion with the spirit of his wife who has been dead 12 years.

Judge Ferriss took the case from the jury on the ground that there was no prima facie showing of undue influence or mental impairment. The estate is estimated at $15,000.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN YEOMAN IN PARADE IN WASHINGTON

Miss Loretta McBride Was First Woman Hero to Take Oath in Service.

Miss Loretta McBride, who has been promoted to chief yeoman of the navy, who was formerly stationed at the Navy Recruiting Station here, and was later transferred to Washington, where she was in charge of organizing and drilling the "yeomanettes" there, led the women yeomen in a parade of returned soldiers in Washington recently.

Miss McBride, one of the first St. Louis women to enter the service, enlisted in May, 1917. She was one of 100 young women to take the civil service examination at that time, and was the first to take the oath of service. She is a graduate of McKittrick High School and the Teachers' College. Before her enlistment she was employed in the mailing department of the Post-Dispatch. Her home is at 2727 Russell avenue.

AUXILIARY MEETING TODAY

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the 128th Field Artillery will meet at the Battery A Armory, Grand avenue and Hickory street, at 2 p. m. today to formulate plans for the return of the regiment when it returns from France. The regiment, which is a St. Louis unit in the Thirty-fifth Division, sailed from France Thursday, and will land in this country April 28, according to word from Col. Frank M. Rumbold, former commander of the 128th.

The regiment is made up of about 1000 men, and is composed of six batteries. It participated in the Argonne-Meuse battle. The date of its demobilization has not been set.

To Sing "Stabat Mater."
The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, directed by L. M. Molino, will sing five numbers from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," on Good Friday evening, at St. Charles Borromeo Church, Twenty-ninth and Locust streets. The soloists will be Miss Minerva Thomsen, Miss Anna Prinz and S. D'Agostino.

LEMONS WHITEN!
MAKE THIS LOTION AND BEAUTIFY SKIN

Strain lemon juice well before mixing and massage face, neck, arms and hands.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to bleach the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a whole quart pint of the best skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it really does clear, smoothen and beautify the skin amazingly.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

EIGHT OF NEGRO'S 24 CHILDREN IN ARMY

Watchman Is Father of Three Sets of Triplets and Five Sets of Twins.

If the memory of John Ben Henderson, a negro night watchman is not at fault, all previous local records for the number of children from one family in the military service are outstripped. Henderson says, that to "the best of his knowledge," he has eight sons in the army.

But then it could not be expected that the father of 24 children, as is Henderson, should remember all these details about his brood. In Henderson's words, when asked how he thought up names for 24 children, "that was not the hard part. The trouble was to remember 'em all."

Is About 58 Years Old.

Henderson was born about the time his parents were freed from slavery, and on that account he says there is no exact record of his age. He thinks he is about 58 years old. He was born and raised down in Washington County, Mo., but married his first wife in "Eastern Maryland." They returned to Osage County, Mo., where the older children were born, but moved later to Boonville, Mo. They were married when Henderson was 17 years old. Frank and Antone, twins, were the first children. Followed them three sets of triplets. Frank, Laura, Julia; Rube, Andrew, Wash, and Ely, Kate and Fanny. Next was Martha; she was the only child born singly. Four sets of boy twins, John and Jonas, Job and Charlie, Clark and Louis, and Julius and Tom were the last children of Henderson's first wife, he said. He said that among his wife's people the same tendency to large families with twins and triplets had been observed.

His first wife, Henderson said, died more than 30 years ago, and five years later he married again. The two sets of twins resulting from this union, died in their infancy.

Henderson and his present wife have been married for a number of years, but they have no children. They live in a well-furnished flat at 3320A Cook avenue.

Because of the financial stress involved in keeping together a large family, Henderson has become separated from all his children, but from word he has received from time to time he feels certain eight of his sons probably some of the last born, are in the army. He thinks they are all in the famous Tenth Cavalry, which participated in the pursuit after the Mexican bandit, Villa, under Gen. Pershing. He does not know whether they went overseas. Henderson is night watchman at a 5 and 10-cent store, and the store presented him with an eight-star service flag which is proudly displayed on wall days. He has been in St. Louis 18 years.

Children Are All Tall.
As if there were not enough records in one family. Henderson says that his children are unusually tall, especially the 14 boys. The eight boys in the army are all well over six feet tall, and Frank and Antone, the oldest, are said to be, respectively, seven feet and three inches and seven feet and eight inches tall. "About" 15 of the children are married. It has come to the father's ears, but he has no idea to what extent he is a grandfather.

Henderson is six feet one inch tall, and weighs 245 pounds, striped, or "neat," as he calls it.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 12.—With the adoption of a platform demanding radical changes in the administration of public affairs, the election of Duncan McDonald, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, as chairman and choice of an executive committee of 15 members to be in charge of activities of the organization, the first state convention of the Labor Party of Illinois came to a close here today. The convention, in session three days, and was attended by representatives from 92 cities of the state.

Abolition of the State Senate, unqualified right to organize a 44-hour week for all workers, equal pay for women, a new state constitution and public ownership of all public utilities, including grain elevators, banks and stockyards, are the outstanding points in the platform.

Each size of furnace is put through exacting scientific tests by our engineers in the laboratory that we maintain for this purpose

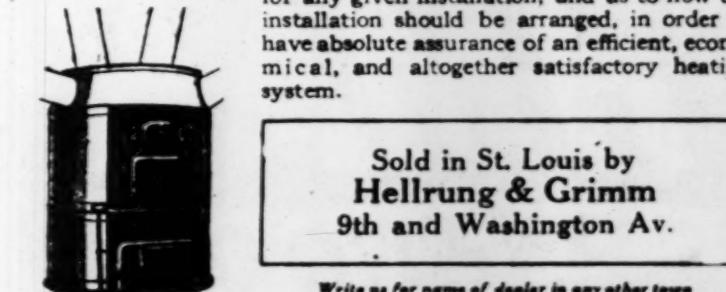

What these Instruments Mean to Anyone with a Home to Heat

Above are shown seven measuring and recording instruments used in the Detroit Jewel testing laboratory by our heating engineers.

With these instruments every size and model of Detroit Jewel Warm Air Furnace is given a final test while in actual operation, and by means of the records thus obtained receives a definite heat power rating. This rating is of the same reliability as the horsepower rating given to your automobile by the automotive engineer.

By the adoption of this definite rating basis in the production of warm air furnaces the Detroit Stove Works has eliminated all room for doubt as to what a Jewel Warm Air Furnace will do.

Each one of the five sizes of Jewel Warm Air Furnaces has its own rating of heating power. It is only a matter of securing the advice of a competent heating engineer regarding the size of furnace to be selected for any given installation, and as to how the installation should be arranged, in order to have absolute assurance of an efficient, economical, and altogether satisfactory heating system.

Judge Lamm, Referee in U. R. Receivership

SAGE SAYINGS CULLED FROM HIS DECISIONS

Arkansas Admirer, Delving Into Opinions by Former Member of Missouri Supreme, Compiles a Book of Aphorisms He Has Employed in Recording His Conclusions on Law and Fact in Cases Before Him.

JUDGE HENRY LAMM.

THE special master in the suit of John W. Seaman of New York, a United Railways stockholder, seeking a receiver for the company and an accounting from its directors, is Judge Henry Lamm of Sedalia.

In a long, distinguished career which carried him to the highest gift of the people of this State for one of his profession—Presiding Justice of the State Supreme Court—Judge Lamm has been known for two pronounced characteristics. The first is, as he himself puts it to lawyers, "striking away the leaves and getting at the fruit" of a case. The second is his propensity to discard the vernacular of the law and write his decisions in the homely, humorous phraseology of a philosopher who has had a long look at life and now is content to view it from the shade tree of his front yard. The Judge was the Republican candidate for Governor in 1916, and was defeated by a few hundred votes. He turned an ordinarily large Democratic majority into a very small one.

Judge Lamm is 72 years old. His first act in the receivership suit was to set the hour for hearings at 9 a.m. That brought protest from lawyers. Former Judge Norton reminded him that in the city court was opened at 10 o'clock. "I know it," Judge Lamm replied, "but I want to get away from the city as soon as I can. People get killed in the streets here all the time. Besides, the air where I come from is pure and clear."

He consented reluctantly to a compromise on 9:30.

His Wit Keeps Lawyers Cheerful.

The first two days were tedious in excelsis—the sing-song reading of long, technical documents. The Judge interrupted repeatedly: "Is this stuff any use here?" Upon assurance of attorneys that it was the basis of the case, he would sigh resignedly and lean back, saying: "Remember, I want to get back home," or "It doesn't take much to divert the mind of a Judge, remember." Thus he was constantly alert to get at "the fruit."

The allegations of this case include wasteful practices by the company's legal department, which itself is appearing in full array, headed by former Judge Henry S. Priest. The air is charged with possibilities of clashes between the attorneys. At the first sign of heat across the table, Judge Lamm breaks in apparently without design with some of his philosophy or a story entirely foreign to the case and when he finishes counsel are laughing and the air is clear.

There is frank admiration from attorneys on both sides for the sharp wit of the master, and, mirabile dictu, a sincere effort to speed up toward the end.

Judge Lamm's philosophy, which he has written into pages of the drear deserts of judicial decisions in Missouri are made the subject of a volume, "Wit, Wisdom and Philosophy," just compiled by Fred C. Mullinix of Jonesville, Ark., and published by the Nixon & Jones Printing Co. of St. Louis. Among the 204 pages are the following observations, each typical of Judge Lamm's outlook on the law and life:

Lawyers and Money Lenders.

In equity lawyer and money lender meet upon a dead level.

Fond of lawsuits, little wealth; fond of doctors, little health.

He who eats out of the same dish with the devil needs a long spoon.

Little do we know what a gloriously uncertain thing it is to go to law.

Justice Delayed Is Justice Denied.

While the dead tell us no tales, neither can the dead defend themselves against tales.

He who is fond of maintaining an action will soon be without means of maintaining himself.

By Marguerite Martyn.

TO a very small group of women—just three, to be exact—do all us other women of Missouri owe our new right to vote for President of the United States.

There were many other women concerned in the well-organized State-wide suffrage campaign. This past winter there has been constantly at Jefferson City—a group of women keeping their fingers on that end of wires and communications which extended out into the constituency of each legislator, the other ends of which wires were being watched by groups of women in each district. At the State Capital the group also had to keep their ears on underground wires, while on the surface they played a pretty game of politics. These groups have varied from time to time in their personnel, but the three women to whose lot it fell, finally, to save the day, have been on the job pretty regularly for months.

How by their tenacity, by a faith that almost makes an earnest suffragist allude to the faith of the women who were last at Calvary, how by sheer effort and resourcefulness, with the suffrage bill at the very last second of time still hanging in the balance, they produced the two necessary votes upon which the issue was decided, makes a dramatic episode, and contributed a spectacular finish to the long and otherwise tedious struggle of women for the franchise in this State.

Like a Plot for a Movie

Though it was all so terribly serious at the time, now that it is over, the tension relaxed, it must be admitted the finale was something more than dramatic. It bordered on the melodramatic. A movie scenario would find in it all the regulation properties, plot and counterplot, racing motor cars, special trains, villains foiled, papers saved, dashing climax, virtue triumphant, happy ending, everything, ready made.

As they do it in the movies, the first flash might reveal close-ups of the leading characters, as follows: Mrs. David N. O'Neill, a tall, statuesque matron, very dignified, said to be a shrewd judge of men, with intuitive insight into their machinations. Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, president of the State Suffrage Association, the wife of an influential citizen of the only county in the State which has always voted a majority for suffrage; Mrs. William R. Haight, a woman of leisure, means and the talent to make herself available in many emergencies.

Scenes in the first reel afford glimpses of many seemingly superficial, but really significant social gatherings. A tea which is especially conspicuous for being the first social event of the capital season is also important as a means of impressing the Governor's wife and wives of the legislators into suffrage circles. Next, the arrival of two distinguished women from a voting state, envoys to Washington on behalf of the Federal amendment.

ment, make it almost incumbent upon the Governor's wife to entertain them.

Result, society and politics all mixed up, and nobody escaping contact with suffrage. Nor do most men and women seem to want to escape it. But our heroines are not deceived by surface politeness. They are well aware of plots large selfish interests, in the big cities, large employers of women, opponents of organized labor, etc., fancy themselves so strongly entrenched that there need be no deception in their work, so they come out in open opposition. Others plot and work in the dark, seemingly holding out for the highest bidder. The women cannot fight with the weapons of the big interests, but they have resources and reserves in the way of constituencies which they call into action whenever they detect wobbling on the part of a pledged legislator.

Many times, with such influential factors as both the minority and majority leaders in the House, the presiding officer of the Senate and the Governor lined up on their side, the women were ready for the issue. Always the measure had safely passed the House and this time, although the bill asked only presidential suffrage, it came out of the House with a little something extra in the way of municipal suffrage. But in the Senate, where men are more deeply involved in political obligations, the Republican canvass always had shown the poll very close and inscrutable.

But with another reel the suffrage convention injects a new element into the drama. Mrs. Catt sent a strong appeal to the Legislature to consider favorably at this time the bill to grant presidential suffrage and permit Missouri women to become charter members of the organization of women voters about to be formed here.

Maybe the opposition thought "The cats will all be in St. Louis this week, leaving the mice in Jefferson City at last a chance to play." Anyway, the opposition began quietly marshalling its forces to have the bill up again that week.

And it was a sacrifice on the part of our heroines to remain in Jefferson City when they might be attending the greatest convention of their kind, shining in the role of hostesses to women distinguished nationally in the cause in which their hearts were bound up. Not for an instant, though did the feminine lobbyists heed the temptation to desert the field even for one evening's attendance at the convention. Suffrage had become more or less a habit anyway, and so they remained, as we know now, to turn another adversity into advantage for women.

Their friends were telling them it would be fatal to the bill to bring it up at this time, so many friendly votes were absent. The women, canvassing the situation as they had done off before, counting and herding, rallying their flocks of votes, found that if no wobbly weak-kneed ones broke away from the fold it would be possible to outdone by Senate Democrats in a bid for women.

They Stand by Their Guns

ALKALI MAKES SOAP BAD FOR WASHING HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain unsulfured coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and easily, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff—ADV.

BOOK REVIEWSADMIRAL JELLINEC'S BOOK.

A REAL fighting man's book is "The Grand Fleet," by Admiral Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa, who commanded the British naval force from the breaking out of the war in 1914 until he was recalled to the Admiralty late in 1918. There is no bluster in it; it's just a plain, simple story of the work of the most powerful naval force ever organized. The one unfortunate thing about it is that, being a naval man's book, a large part of it appeals only to the technician. The lay reader is not likely to find anything that he can understand in discussions of condenser tubes, comparisons between the director and the alternative systems or cracking guns.

"More than a hundred years after the battle of Trafalgar and after a century of controversy," writes the Admiral, "the Admiralty considered it desirable to appoint a committee to decide whether that action was fought in accordance with the original intentions of the Commander-in-Chief, as embodied in his famous Memorandum. It is hoped that the facts recorded in this book and the comments accompanying them constitute a clear record of the making of the Grand Fleet and the manner in which it endeavored, while under my command, to fulfill its mission."

It is obvious from this that Admiral Jellicoe considers his book the last and complete word about the work of the fleet during the period covered by his narrative.

In all history, no force was ever organized on land or sea that was comparable to Jellicoe's, and never did so much depend on a single arm of service in war. The navies of Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, Nelson, Royston, or Togo, all put together were puny in comparison. Jellicoe's fleet was the backbone of the allied cause; if it had failed at any time or even faltered Germany would have conquered Europe, if not the world.

And yet, according to the revelations in this book, the British navy was not nearly so invincible as the allied world liked to believe in the early part of the war. Admiral Jellicoe bears testimony that the German fleet was sufficiently formidable to cause the British Admiralty to suffer greatly. The dangerous game of pacifism had permeated British official life and the navy. Like the army, was desperately unprepared for war when war came. The Germans, it is true, were heavily outnumbered in fighting ships. They realized this and, as time is essential to the acquisition of numbers in ships, they had striven to discount the British superiority in this respect by constructing better ships. Admiral Jellicoe says the Germans had better "material," better armor, and were better gunned in some respects. This superior equipment, which included better optical and range-finding glasses, made them extremely dangerous and it was a handicap, according to the Admiral, that was not overcome until over two years after the war started.

The first three chapters of the book deal with the opening of the war and the organization of the Grand Fleet. The next 11 chapters are highly technical, dealing with construction, maneuver and training problems as well as with the disposition of the various arms of the fleet. Through this period the German submarine was an awe-inspiring menace, largely because it was entirely new and the plan of fighting it, which later became so effective after America's entrance into the war, had not been evolved. Then comes a consideration of the condition of the fleet in the early part of 1915, when it was beginning to develop that efficiency that it should have had when it went into the war. Then comes the telling of the story of the battle of Jutland. In that battle Jellicoe had 24 battleships, 9 battle cruisers and 70 destroyers, to say nothing of numerous smaller craft, including submarines. What a spectacle for the shades of Augustus, Cleopatra and Antony, who once were arrayed in battle for the mastery of the world in a fleet of triremes and quinqueremes that would have bolded the Atlantic! The British had the smallest of the British ships? The Germans claimed to have won this battle. The Admiral does not think they did. He says:

"With the single exception of a cruise toward the English coast in August, 1916—undertaken, no doubt, by such portion of the high sea fleet as had been repaired in order to show that it was still capable of going to sea—the high sea fleet never again, up to the end of 1917, ventured much outside the Helgoland triangle. This is hardly the method of procedure that would be adopted by a fleet flushed with victory and belonging to a country that was being strangled by the sea blockade."

We learn from this book that Jellicoe advocated in 1914 the same kind of raid on Zeebrugge that was carried out by the British in November, 1917. He urged it again in 1916, and again a year later when the plan was adopted.

There are 500 pages in the Admiral's books and adequate and understandable maps and charts.

The death of Lord Kitchener is considered at length and Admiral Jellicoe has no doubt that the loss of the War Secretary's ship, the Hampshire, was due to a German laid mine.

The British naval base was at Scapa Flow in the Orkneys at the extreme northern point of the United Kingdom, where the weather is nearly always wild. The men who made up the British grand fleet—and our own men were there, too, after we went in—had a harsh time of it. The waves ran high there and the north winds were particularly chilling, but that was the place where the fleet could keep command of the sea and the morale of its force was always high, despite the Arctic weather and the mighty seas.

Handling this fleet was a task for a calm and patient man, one who understood that, in a very decided sense, the result of the war depended on him. It was essential that he regard his command at all times in its larger aspects, that, if the occasion arose, he was to spend his resources without stint, and that, if the occasion did not justify it, he was to husband them closely and carefully, preserving and conserving at all times. It was necessary that he give no thought to his own glory, to things that might be accomplished at great hazard and yet might not be worth much after they were accomplished. It was his task to watch and wait and he did this to the fullest measure despite the critics who constantly called

BUSINESS WOMAN'S CONVENTION

Organizations of business and professional women in 10 states will participate in the first convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women of America, which is to open in St. Louis July 14.

Every state is expected to be represented at the convention, which will be held "for the purpose of improving the economic condition of 11,000,000 women in gainful occupation."

WIT AND PHILOSOPHY

It does not fill the malignant office of poison in taking life.

Men are not usually dishonest. Human nature is not as prone to do wrong in business transactions as sparks to fly upward. In the law there is a presumption in favor of innocence. It is familiar doctrine of everyday use in the administration of justice, that if a transaction comport as well with honesty as dishonesty, then the law takes the nobler and better view of the transaction.

The case at bar has the vantage ground of being a "seed case," hence this court may be persuaded, but is unbound, by precedent. Being free to take the view deemed soundest, it cannot be easier to ponder well the course we set out on. A choice at the forks of the road is one thing—to read back on a journey is quite another.

Certainly there were funeral expenses; probably there were medical attendance and expenses of the last sickness. In the usual course of the usual business dealing, among average farmers, it is not likely that Mr. M. paid all his debts when he rendered his final account and paid his debt to nature. Such an ideally clear balance sheet as that, when one is called to give up the ghost and be gathered to his fathers, is not impossible, but can hardly be said to be probable by a court that is presumed to know that the current run of business dealing results in earthly debits and credits. For what saith the proverb? "Sins and debts are always more than we think them to be."

Raising Constitutional Points.

A grave provision of the Constitution may be invoked by every litigant at every turn to cause an act of the Legislature to perish by judicial construction, or to take away or confer jurisdiction. Not only may the right to raise constitutional point be waived, but such point may be injected untimely, and (what is more to the point) it may be raised by a litigant not entitled to raise it all or invoke a constitutional safeguard on the record presented to the court. Said Glendower (sweepingly):

"I can call spirits from the vasty deep."

Retorted young Henry Percy, surnamed Hotspur (full of critical doubt):

"Why, so can I, and so can any man. But will they come when you do call for them?"

Something as it was of old in the days of Henry IV, Falstaff, Mortimer, Glendower, Poirot, Bardolph and Hotspur et al., with spirits so is it now with constitutional points. A litigant may call on the constitution, but will it come?

"In Vino Veritas" With Exceptions.

We may pause with some little profit to moralize a bit on the testimony of F. What a man sees when half seas over (we speak with becoming reserve) is seen as through a glass, darkly—that is, dimly, inexactly, uncertainly, as in a vision, a mist, or a fog. There is a very old adage in a dead language, "In vino veritas," but it is of doubtful or no use in the administration of justice as a precept in sitting and applying testimony. We opine, at all events it should be construed strictly; that is to say, by letter. Observe, it does not say there is truth in all the possible variety of drinks sold in Chil's saloon in Gasconade."

The atmosphere of the plane on which a court moves is not so frosty that no buds of sentiment may swell and bloom there. No court is so high and cold that it may not be generous; therefore far be it from us to refuse judicial aid and judicial commendation to a gentle flow of filial affection, whether that be early or late, weak or strong.

The Trial Judge's Judgment.

Truth does not always stalk boldly forth naked and modest withal, in a printed abstract of the trial record. She oftentimes tries to hide in nooks and crannies, visible only to the mind's eye of the judge who tries the case. To him appears the furtive glance, the blush of conscious shame, the hesitation, the sincere, or the flippant or the sneering tone, the heat, the calmness, the yawn, the sigh, the candor, or lack of it, the scant or full realization of the solemnity of an oath, the carriage and mien.

The brazen face of the liar, the glibness of the schooled witness reticent, the secret and the itching over-sensitiveness of the shift witness, as well as the honest face of the truth-teller, are alike seen by him. In short, one witness may give testimony that reads in print here as if falling from the lips of an angel of light, and yet not a soul who heard it, nisi, believed a word of it; and another witness may testify so it reads brokenly and obscures in print, and yet there was that about the witness that carried conviction of truth to every soul who heard him testify. Therefore, where an issue in equity rests alone in the credibility of witnesses, the upper court may, with entire propriety, rest somewhat on the superior advantage of the lower court in determining the facts.

LARGE FAMILIES IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 18.—Notwithstanding all that is said about the depopulation of France, large families are by no means scarce in certain rural parts of the country.

A society for the encouragement of large families publishes a report giving the names of 587 families in the department of the Loire Inferieure, each of which has more than six sons or sons-in-law with the colors. At the head of the list is the Mariot family, of which 22 members, 9 sons, 2 sons-in-law and 10 grandsons joined the army. Four of them were killed, four wounded, one died in captivity and one is missing. Four won the Croix de Guerre. Numerous other families in the Saint Nazaire district have had from 6 to 12 sons and grandsons at the front. The 587 families named furnished 4915 soldiers to the army.

NO MAN'S LAND HAS BEAUTIFUL SIDE

St. Louis Girl Writes That It Has Taught People How to Live.

Miss Claudia Lide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Lide of 6102 Washington avenue, who is engaged in reconstruction work with the Commission for Relief in Belgium, tells in a letter to her parents about a trip to Ypres gives a graphic description of "No Man's Land" as it looks now and describes her work. She writes:

"There was no house left in Ypres. Some of the navy boys took us in a big reconnaissance car. We left at 10 this morning and got back at 4:30. On the way to Ypres we went through Armentieres, which is almost entirely destroyed. We stopped near camel hill and took some pictures. In a ditch we saw the partly uncovered skeleton of a horse. Between Armentieres and Ypres the land looks as though huge moles had been through it. We saw camouflaged ammunition dumps and 'pillboxes' and the lookouts in the trees."

"There was not a house left in Ypres. The British Labor Battalion who are collecting the bodies and burying them in cemeteries, are living in cellars and dugouts. The dugouts are the safest, because the walls of the buildings are always falling in."

"We came back to Lille through Menin, and I wish I could give you an idea of No Man's Land."

"For miles there is nothing but waste and desolation. The trees are like black skeletons and the land is pitted with shell holes, trenches and dug outs, and covered with shells, rusty sheet iron and debris of all kinds. We stopped once to take a picture of some of the tanks. As we stood on a small hill, we saw in the distance a low ridge, then a desert made by human hands, over which were scattered rusty tanks which seemed to have grown tired of the bitter struggle, and to have stopped to rest. One of these tanks had run into a tree and was caught half-way over the stump. Several had stopped in the water of a small pond. Not far off was an airplane that had fallen and was caught in the mud."

"Here and there were black charred and standing like giant sentinels, and every now and then a crow would fly across this wide waste and light on one of the trees. Before we started on again, it began to rain, a dismal, misty rain, and our picture became one in gray and black. The sky above was dark gray, the distant hills black, the mist light gray over the slightly deeper gray of the land blotted with black spots of shell holes, tanks, trees and every now and then smaller black specks which flitted about from place to place."

"We watched this scene as we rode along, and it did not change for miles, even when we passed places where villages once stood. In places the grass is beginning to be green and this makes the contrast greater, because the blackness and deadness of the trees becomes more marked. But you cannot help thinking that God's plan for the world is life, and even on the life."

"No Man's Land becomes beautiful when we see the people who have learned to live, to share and help each other. The Tommies do it, the sailors and soldiers do it; the refugees do it, and every one is happy. Farther in towards Lille, even before we left Belgium, we passed pretty red-roofed houses and a windmill that seemed miles away from the terrible battlefield which we had just seen. On the outskirts of the city, the people have planted the gardens and the early vegetables are beginning to come up. Everybody feels that spring is here, and everybody is glad because spring means new life to this region in more ways than one."

"Algerian and Chinese troops are busy in all these regions exploding the hand grenades, shells, etc. They exploded some star shells while we were there and I heard the explosion and saw the smoke but did not turn in time to see the light."

"This is my day's program. We have breakfast about 8:30, walk over to the school and begin work at 9. There are four of us in this department besides our chief nurse, who has to make trips and organize the work. We have found twelve children (we have found three girls) from their classes, bring them in a warm room, help them undress, two at a time, and then go to work. Those who are tubercular or who have other serious trouble like curvature of the spine, skin disease, etc., are visited and examined by the doctor. We make a list of those who need nourishing food and turn this over to the teachers who send the children to the canteen. From 9 till 11:30 we weigh, measure, examine and list children."

How Motor Trucks Released 885 Freight Cars in One Week

Akron is the rubber center of the world—Cleveland the lakeport of enterprise.

Distance between points, 40 miles.

Freight rate, 27 cents per hundredweight—plus cartage costs to and from terminals.

Motor truck charge, 40 cents from collection to delivery point—service quicker, more personal, satisfactory and economical.

Today 885 fewer freight cars ply between Cleveland and Akron—motor trucks carry the tonnage!

But mark this. In the most serious venture of their lives the pioneers of this scheme—putting the yardstick of value to every dollar spent on equipment—chose as the foundation for all their trucks GOODRICH DE LUXE Truck Tires.

The Brunswick

ALL PHONOGRAHS IN ONE

Satisfies All Tastes Because It Plays All Records

YOUR choice of artists need no longer be restricted to those of one organization. Every record-maker has under contract certain outstanding stars. None has them all. With The Brunswick you can hear the best of each. You can know all the interpretations of the great roles.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction has made this possible. We have found our reward in the generous praise that has been accorded it universally, and in the constantly increasing demand for Brunswicks. The House of Brunswick is proud of the reputation this master-phonograph has won.

Two Remarkable Features

Two notable departures from old methods characterize The Brunswick Method of Reproduction. Both are of vital importance to music lovers. They are (1) The Ultona, and (2) The Brunswick Amplifier.

By a simple turn of the hand the Ultona presents the proper needle, diaphragm and weight to any record, whatever make. This simple invention enables you to play any record, regardless of the recording method employed.

The Brunswick Amplifier develops and projects the tone according to the proven laws of acoustics. Metallic sounds are banished. It reproduces with perfect accuracy and faithfulness the most difficult tones. Built entirely of moulded wood, like a fine violin, its resiliency permits of the necessary expansion and contraction of the tone waves.

One hearing of The Brunswick will cause you to discard the standards of yesterday in judging phonographs. You will be delighted to find the great improvement in all records when played on The Brunswick.

Responsible dealers everywhere will gladly play The Brunswick for you, and explain The Brunswick Method of Reproduction.

BULGARIAN KING PAYS TRIBUTE TO AMERICA

Boris Grateful for U. S. Aid and Hopes to Be Able to Visit
This Country.

Correspondence of the Associated Press,
SOFIA, March 20.—King Boris of Bulgaria is confident that there is not much danger of the spread of the Bolshevik doctrine among the people of his country. In an interview with the correspondent of the Associated Press, he declared that the Bulgarian people are too sensible and too enterprising in their daily agricultural pursuits to bother with revolutionary schemes of government.

The King discussed with the correspondent the disorder and chaos in Russia and the disturbed internal situation in Germany, and asked the correspondent's opinion whether Bolshevik would obtain a hold on the new German republic, or other European countries.

The interview took place in the room in which only a few months ago the young King Boris' father, King Ferdinand, had abdicated. The youthful monarch, who is 25 years old, is very modest, democratic and unobtrusive in manner. His whole appearance and bearing suggest the student rather than royal. In fact, he might be taken for an American college man. He has delicate, refined features, alert but kindly eyes and a quiet, gracious address, and speaks excellent English. His favorite occupation is mechanics and engineering. He is able to drive a locomotive and always operates his own automobile.

Wears Major's Uniform.

The King wears the crab uniform of a Major with a medal awarded for bravery at the front on his breast. He is extremely popular among the Bulgarian soldiers with whom he fought side by side for three years in dangerous positions.

On the walls of the room in which the King received the correspondent were autographed photographs of the crowned heads of many nations, but that of the former Emperor William of Germany was conspicuously absent. A volume of the addresses of President Wilson rested on a writing-table and in a bookcase near by were several American books and Bryce's "American Commonwealth."

The King expressed pleasure in meeting the American correspondent who, he said, was the first American to visit Bulgaria since the beginning of the war. His first question was to ask if his visitor had any news relating to the peace conference, in the doings of which the young King displayed eager interest. He declared that the Bulgarian people would long be grateful to the United States for its course toward Bulgaria during the war.

Confidence in America.

"We have always had an unshakable confidence in the friendship and good will of your country, and the highest admiration for the splendid principles of your President," said the King. "It is this feeling which gave us reason to hope that at the peace conference the small but industrious Bulgarian people will have their most powerful support in the American republic and its illustrious President. In the early years of their national existence, it was the sons of America who gave the Bulgarians the Bible in their own tongue."

"I think that the great mission which Providence has laid upon President Wilson will be felt most beneficially in the Balkans, where the nations are awaiting justice and harmony in their political relations in order to be able to enjoy enduring peace, productive labor and true moral and cultural progress."

Tribute to Murphy.

Referring to the work of American schools in Bulgaria, King Boris declared that their influence upon education, culture and progress of the country was enormous. It was in the American schools at Constantinople and Samokov that some of Bulgaria's best statesmen obtained their early training, he declared. The King expressed warm appreciation of the services of Dominick H. Murphy, formerly American Charge d'Affaires in Bulgaria. He declared that Murphy was largely instrumental in bringing about the cessation of hostilities in the Balkans.

The King paid high tribute to the British forces in the fighting on the Macedonian front, for their bravery and their clean methods of fighting. "Gas attacks," he said, "are unsportsmanlike and an inhuman method of warfare."

His fondest hope, said the King, was to visit the United States after the conclusion of peace.

MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS, LETTER

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LONDON, April 12.—The National Art Collection Fund has loaned to the Royal Scottish Museum in Edinburgh, pending its final disposition, the last letter of Mary, Queen of Scots, addressed to her brother-in-law, Henry III, of France, and written the night before her execution.

This letter was acquired from the Morrison collection by a number of persons for presentation to the Scottish people. It is in a perfect state of preservation.

In the letter, Queen Mary told King Henry that, having passed nearly 20 years in the captivity of Queen Elizabeth, she had at last been condemned to death, and had been ordered to be executed as a criminal care. She signed the letter "at two hours after midnight. Your most loving and very good sister."

WHY AUTO STEALING IS EASY UNDERTAKING

The reason automobile stealing is so easy and so general is that automobile owners take less care of the safety of an automobile than they do of any other piece of property." This was the statement of Prose-cutter Attorney Lawrence McDaniel to a meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association Tuesday night. McDaniel also said that another reason for easy automobile stealing is that the thief purloins his own means of getting away. McDaniel asked the support of the association for several automobile bills pending in the Missouri Legislature and advised a campaign of education along safety lines in driving. W. L. Patterson of the St. Louis Motor Service Co. said that his work on the statistical committee of the Safety Council showed that there was some kind of an automobile accident in St. Louis every 40 minutes.

Three new members were elected: The Dressell Collapsible Rim Co., the H. & H. Machine Co. and the Associated Automobile Service Co.

THE MOON VICTORY LIGHT SIX - A POST-WAR CAR.

The Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis has completed a year of intensive work on war materials and has returned to the manufacture of Moon automobiles. The Moon plant a year ago was turned over entirely to the United States Government for the manufacture of 155-millimeter shells and other war munitions, including the assembling of trucks. Within a week all this work had been taken over by the Government and vast quantities of the material and special machinery and special inventories credited to the Moon company have been moved to a United States arsenal.

The company now has enough of its plant open to get quickly into motor-car production on a large scale. The Moon company is one of the very first passenger-car builders in the United States to bring out a real post-war car. This is its new Victory light-six model, with the

COLE AERO EIGHT SHOWS
15,000 MILES FOR TIRES

One of the big predictions made by the Cole Motor Car Co. when they first brought out their Aero-eight was that its balanced construction would enable the owner to get an average of 15,000 miles to a set of tires. J. A. Hutcheson, president of the Cole St. Louis Auto, is showing that this is an actual fact.

He is showing at the salesroom this week a car carrying its original equipment of Goodrich Silvertown Cord tires which have a mileage credit of over 15,000 miles, and apparently have several thousand miles of travel yet in them.

This mileage has been accumulated, not only on city streets, but on cross-country tours, having been through seven states. The two front tires are said never to have been off the rim, the only attention they have had being the addition of a little air a few times, and the testing of the pressure.

In speaking of the mileage, Mr. Hutcheson pointed out that 15,000 miles represented three trips across the continent, or the mileage of two full years of driving for the average motorist.

CROIX DE GUERRE MAN TO SELL HUDSON LINE

Sergt. Walter H. Wolfner, 555 Clara avenue, member of F Company, 138th Infantry, who has just returned from France wearing the Croix de Guerre awarded him by France for saving the life of a French army Captain, has joined the sales force of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., St. Louis distributor of Hudson and Essex cars. Sergt. Wolfner is a son of J. L. Wolfner, who was formerly a member of Gov. Major's staff. He was wounded and gassed while in the service in France and was discharged at Camp Grant last Saturday.

DEALERS PROTEST SALE OF ARMY USED TRUCKS

Harry G. Monck, business manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, has pledged the support of that body to the National Truck Sales Managers' Association to induce the Government not to throw on the market its used trucks. The apparently good argument is used that the public would not benefit in the purchase of army trucks, because they have been badly used under terrific strain by inexperienced drivers and would be of no value except to a rebuilder.

KARDELL TRACTOR TESTED

A demonstration of the Kardell Utility farm tractor, which is to be produced in St. Louis by the Kardell Tractor and Truck Co., was made April 5 on a 40-acre farm on the Clayton road, just west of Pennsylvania avenue. This was the fourth of a series of demonstrations made for stockholders and prospective buyers. A large attendance was present.

The tractor, which is rated to develop eight horse-power on the drawbar and 16 on the belt, drew two 14-inch plows, provided by the Parlin & Orendorff Co. of St. Louis. W. H. Kardell drove. The tractor weighs 2610 pounds with gas and water and develops a plowing speed of three and one-half miles an hour.

RICKENBACKER COMING.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker will be at St. Louis May 8, at the Jefferson-Shubert Theater. Rickenbacker is America's greatest flying ace and is credited with bringing down 26 enemy planes. He was with the Ninety-fourth Aero Pursuit Squadron. He will tell his own story and that of other aces, of air adventures and battles on the French front.

F. E. Howard has been added to the sales force of the Park Automobile Co., distributor of the Peerless line.

BATTERY MEN TO MEET.

Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence McDaniel will address the newly-organized Garage Battery Dealers' Association at the American Hotel Annex Monday at noon. He will tell them of the work in the recovery of loaned batteries, among other things. At the last meeting of the association, W. E. Moerschell of the Moerschell Battery and Electric Supply Co., showed by carefully compiled figures that the actual cost of charging a battery was well above 75 cents. E. W. Martin, service manager of the Overland company told how to please customers requiring attention from service departments.

FOR TOWNSEND BILL.
Many national organizations interested in one way or another in highway improvement will support in the next Congress what is now known as the Townsend bill. This is evident from the numerous inquiries received by the American Automobile Association from all parts of the country. These letters find their way to the A. A. A. main headquarters because of the co-operation of this country-wide organization of car owners with the American Association of State Highway Officials in the passage of the Federal aid road act, a result of which the Federal Government is now spending $275,000,000 in the next two and one-half years, with a like amount contributed by the several states.

Ten days' free trial is a new sales feature that was announced this week in connection with U. and J. Carburetors by L. B. Tebbets & Co., 3206 Locust street, distributor of Co. U. and J. for Missouri, Kansas and southern Illinois.

The above was the statement made by L. B. Tebbets in explaining the new plan.

The Stewart Products Service Station, 3206 Locust street, added to the sales force William W. Cahill, to represent the station in Missouri and Arkansas, and Leonard R. Hunter, in Illinois.

TAPE IN THE TOOL BOX.

Tire tape is to the automobile what a bandage is to a Red Cross nurse, and a man who drives a car would as soon think of leaving it out of his tool box as a Red Cross nurse would think of leaving a bandage out of her first-aid kit.

The United States Tire Co. advises all its patrons to include a roll of its tape in their equipment. Its uses are innumerable. It can most conveniently be used for repairing bad seats caused by blow-outs and punctures. It is also valuable for winding "leaky" electric wires or making temporary repairs to broken rods or rattling parts.

and care of farm tractors. Rottermann recently became distributor for the Wheat tractor throughout Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

WINS OVERLAND PRIZES.

The Overland Automobile Co.'s retail sales department has just finished two sales contests.

The first gave a trip to the Overland factory at Toledo, O., to the winning salesman. This was won by L. P. Hambuchen. The second sales contest was called Wallace Week, in honor of W. G. Wallace, secretary and treasurer of the Overland Automobile Co. of St. Louis. This was also won by L. P. Hambuchen.

OPENS EXPORT OFFICE.

As a result of the exceptional increase in the export business of the present Rubber Co., its general department, formerly operated from the general offices of the company at Cudahy, Wis., has been transferred to the company's Eastern headquarters at 341 W. Sixty-second street, New York City.

G. H. Hamilton, for many years associated with the Federal company as special representative, and who is one of the best known men in the rubber industry, has been appointed manager of the export department.

He will have charge of all matters pertaining to this branch.

The factory output of the Federal Rubber Co. covers a wide range of products, including the well-known "Trafik" and "Cord" tire casings, inner tubes, tire accessories and repair materials, mechanical rubber goods, etc., representing in all more than 100 distinct lines, for which there is a steadily increasing demand.

The Barnett Sales Co. report 72 trucks sold during February. A large percentage of these sales were on models 500 and 550, the chain drive and internal gear drive truck builders for Fords.

FEDERAL
"Extra Gauge" Red Tube

Extra Thick—Unusually Strong Particularly Adapted for Oversize Casings.

TOO light a tube, even though of good stock, naturally cannot be as strong and durable as a tube of equal quality but of "Extra Gauge," or heavier stock.

The FEDERAL "EXTRA GAUGE" RED TUBE is of exceptional quality and extra thickness, and which, by its unusual serviceability, is particularly adapted for Cord and other oversize casings.

It is made from extra fine quality pure rubber, built up layer upon layer, thus making the tube exceptionally strong and impervious to leakage. The high quality of the rubber used in its construction renders it very resilient.

Transportation Facts Are Established

For sound, practical reasons and the best use of your money, why not make an attempt to verify the facts before deciding whether you will spend two or three thousand dollars for an ordinary automobile, or invest in a Twin Six Packard with all that a Packard can give you

LEADING transportation expert has said that most automobiles are built on theory and bought on personal opinion.

Transportation is now a science. It is a science that applies to your own car whether it carries you across the Continent or merely from your home to your office or serves your family or friends in their daily activities.

It would astonish the average car owner to see a scientific test of his car in its relation to the whole question of transportation.

We say the whole question because advantages are claimed and economies cited for certain parts of a car or special phases of the question.

It is only by treating the problem as a whole that we get the facts.

For example, a man may have his eye filled by economy of gasoline and tires, and he may throw away more on engine tinkering than he saves on both these items.

He may get speed at the cost of vibration that racks and wrecks his car.

He may get lightness at the expense of safety or dragging weight at a heavy up-keep charge.

If he gets power when he wants it he may have to pay for it when he doesn't use it.

While passenger cars were bought as luxuries alone, it was difficult to get consideration for the facts.

Just as today the average automobile for family use is a compromise, an amateur job from the standpoint of scientific transportation; its advantage in one direction offset by loss in another.

It is a matter of business.

When will the purchase of the family car be regarded as a business transaction?

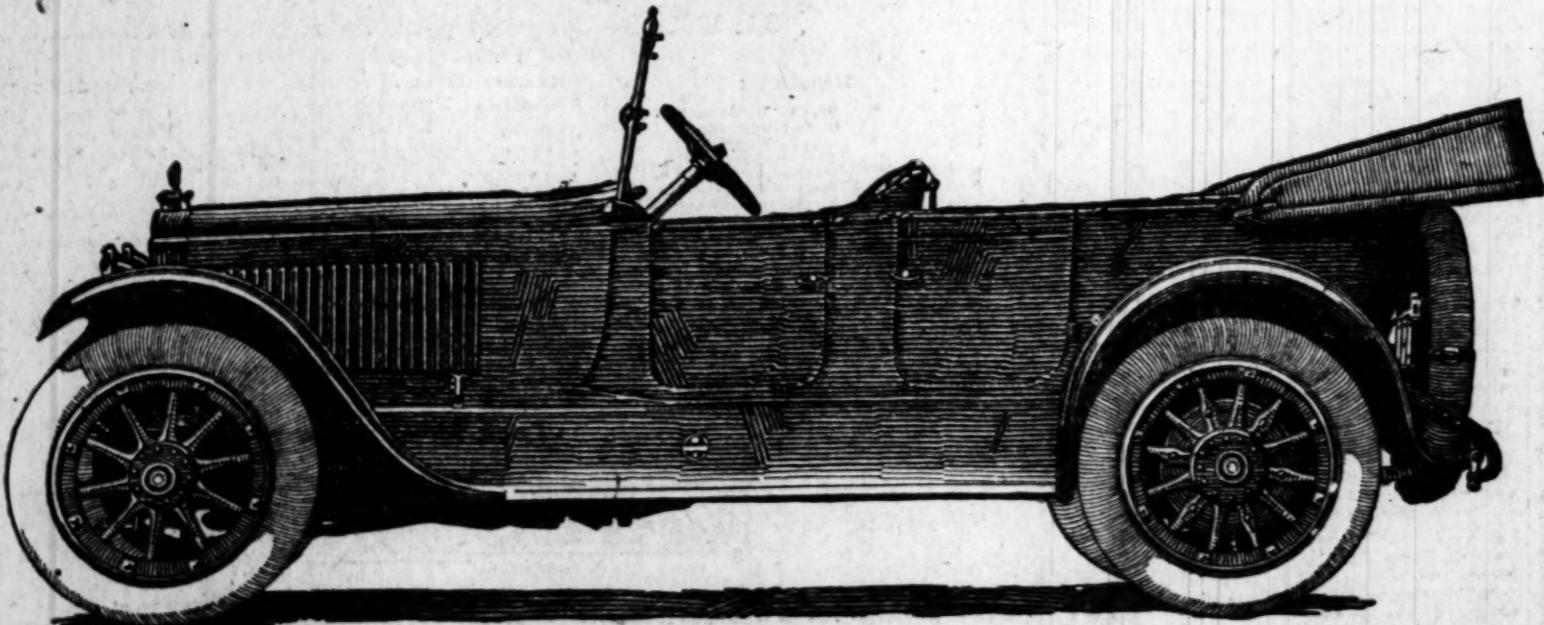

The Packard people are transportation experts; they have more to tell you on this subject than any other organization in the world. You can ask them to discuss your car problem without obligation. It is to your interest and profit to do so.

United States, have become so educated to the utility of the motor car that there is no field of activity into which it has not been introduced.

"The crying need of the world today is transportation. The solution of that problem has come through the development of the motor car and the motor truck. It will be a number of years before the supply will catch up with the demand. The vital thing in undoing this knot of transportation is roads—good roads, dry, trucking, paved. The Government has been foolish enough to get behind this national movement for better roads and foster its growth with large appropriations. At least 50 per cent of the food produced in the United States goes to waste because of the lack of good roads connecting the farmer with his markets."

This was the assertion of a widely known dealer in commenting on the first aid conveniences that have appeared in accessory stores for the season.

"Almost since the birth of motorizing as a national recreation," the dealer continued, "motorists have carried first aid extras ranging from tube patches to spare wheels. But it was not until the 1919 season that the practice of carrying an extra belt became popular."

"An overheated engine and a boiling radiator are perplexities that frequently have taken all the pleasure out of mountain motorizing. Almost invariably a motorist condemns his engine for overheating. Usually he is wrong. The trouble, nine times out of ten, is due to a slipping, stretching fan belt—a belt that refuses to function and spin the fan in proportion to the speed and resultant increased heat of the engine."

"No effort was made until this season to standardize fan belts, and credit for this accomplishment is due to Charles C. Gates, head of the Gates Rubber Co. of Denver, Colo. Since the production of standard endless belts the practice of carrying an extra has become almost universal. Consequently sales have increased enormously. The Gates company alone reports the sale of 6,300,000 fan belts for 1919, or one belt for each pleasure car, truck and tractor in the United States."

JEWETT GIVES VIEWS ON MOTOR INDUSTRY

Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., in one of his recent statements to the Newell Motor Car Co., said:

"We believed a few years ago that the motor car industry was approaching the peak of its development. Then the war came on. Since that time we have learned more, our perspective has broadened more and we have done more in the standardization of the motor car than was ever thought possible."

"Paralleling this development has been the growth in the demand for motor cars. The people throughout the world, and particularly in the United States, have become so educated to the utility of the motor car that there is no field of activity into which it has not been introduced.

LONG TIRE ENDURANCE.

The advent of cord construction in automobile tires has made possible the manufacture of tires which give astounding mileages, yet there are many automobile owners who have found so great a degree of satisfaction in some favorite brand of fabric tire, that they are loath to change to the new type.

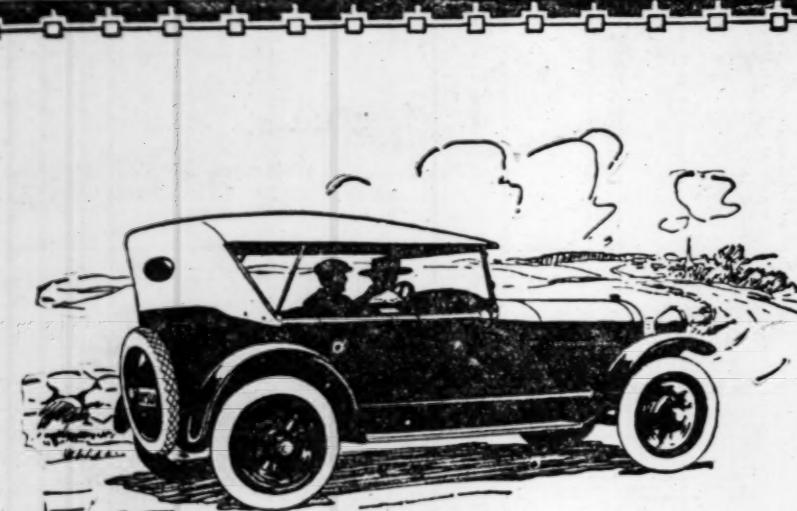

The United States Tire Co. reports sales of its fabric brands that show these tires are continually gaining favor among motorists who want good tires at a moderate initial cost.

President J. Newton Gunn of the United States Tire Co. has received this letter from a New Haven merchant, telling why he remains firm in his allegiance to the "Chain" tread:

"I think 20,346 miles up to date is a remarkable record for three out of a set of five of your 35x4½ 'Chain' tread tires. They are still on my seven-passenger car in serviceable condition, and the car is used every day."

MILEAGE IS DOUBLED BY NEW "GASOLATER"

To increase the going capacity of a gallon of gasoline from 30 to 100 per cent, and at the same time eliminate all carbon trouble, are achievements which tests have established for a small casting with a revolving fan in its center. It is the fan, of course, that performs the wonders stated, and its service is guaranteed.

—Martin-Lumaghi Manufacturing Co., a $300,000 concern, with offices in the Third National Bank Building, St. Louis. It is known as the "Gasolater."

The Gasolater fits snugly between the carburetor and the intake manifold. Made in four sizes, it is easily attachable to any automobile and can also be put to service in any internal combustion engine. The revolving fan, which is a solid casting, according to C. W. Hunt & Co., a noted engineering firm of New York, goes at the rate of 12,000 revolutions a minute, and in this speed that absolutely breaks every drop of gasoline into infinitesimal particles before it reaches the intake manifold. Thus the gasoline being already completely vaporized, the work in the combustion chamber is instantaneous and all waste is entirely overcome. Under such a condition there can be no carbon trouble, as every particle of the fuel is converted into power.

The company's claim is that the cheapest grade of gasoline can be made into first-class fuel, and that kerosene oil will also render excellent service when fed through the Gasolater. It is claimed further, that all cylinders in the high-powered cars are kept in perfect action by the attachment.

Officers and directors of the Martin-Lumaghi Manufacturing Co. are: Ben J. Martin, president; Louis F. Lumaghi, vice-president; John B. Myers, secretary-treasurer; Charles W. Lewis and R. S. Colton.

DE LUXE CO. ESTABLISHES LARGE SERVICE PLANT

Announcement was made last week by P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., that negotiations had been completed whereby his company had leased the former home of the Traffic Motor Truck Co., 3807-13 Lacledene avenue. The new quarters will be used exclusively as a service station for the owners of Oldsmobile passenger cars and trucks.

The building, which is modern in every particular, has 45,000 square feet of floor space, and will be the largest service station, not only in St. Louis, but in the West. The size of the building can best be shown by the fact that the Traffic Motor Truck Co. were able to turn out a complete truck every 45 minutes.

With ample space at his command Brockman plans to departmentalize a service station. Each kind of repair work will be in charge of an expert in that branch. A machine shop will be installed, as well as a number of wash racks for the convenience of Oldsmobile owners.

The Traffic Motor Truck Co. is now moving into a new plant in North St. Louis, and plans to give Brockman possession of the former location in about 10 days.

The sales room and general offices of the De Luxe Automobile Co. will be conducted at the present location, 3116 Locust street and 3101 Olive street.

NEW EXIDE STATION OPEN

The new Factory Branch Service Station of the Exide Battery Depots, Inc., will open Tuesday at 3408 Lindell avenue. Elaborate arrangements have been made for giving the very best possible battery service to all automobile users, both gasoline and electric. A large drive-in space has been arranged just west of the service station, which will accommodate 30 or 40 cars at a time.

The new service station will be in charge of A. H. Baebler, who has been connected with the Exide organization for a number of years. Associated with Baebler will be E. V. Moran, C. F. Springer, O. Ebmeyer, E. Boettcher and G. Sheehan.

A complete stock of batteries has been installed so that new batteries for any make of car can be installed on any owner's car within a very few minutes.

A BILLION FOR TIRES.

American motorists will spend over $1,000,000,000 for automobile and truck tires during 1919. This is the estimate of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., and is based on conservative average price per tire. This amount does not include money expected to be expended for inner tubes and repair materials, which undoubtedly would swell the total by several million dollars.

Before the year closes it is confidently expected that fully 7,300,000 motor vehicles will be in operation in this country. Three-fourths of the tires for this enormous number of cars and trucks will be made in Akron.

WHEN A BATTERY IS 'DOWN'

R. L. Hutto, general manager of the Delhi Battery and Supply Co., St. Louis, operator of the first storage battery, says: "A storage battery should never be allowed to completely discharge itself. It is considered discharged when the acid solution in the cells, keeping the plates, shows a specific gravity test of 1150 which means that most of the acid has combined with the plates. At this stage the battery may still sluggishly do its work, but it has about lost its energy and should be immediately recharged.

"Generators furnished on most automobiles, usually keep the battery charged, but if the generator fails to happen to the battery, as well as to the generator and electrical system which will eventually 'drain it' of current or cause considerable trouble and expense. It is therefore, we have our battery tested regularly by some battery expert so that any irregularities either in the battery or electrical system may be corrected before they become serious."

The "Biltwell" Body Saved His Life

"Our driver, while endeavoring to avoid a collision, turned too sharply and upset the car. Upon examination the only injury was the scratching of the paint and the moldings, and the breaking of the glass. MORE THAN A MILLION LINES GAIN

The overwhelming supremacy of St. Louis' "One Big Newspaper" is again proven by the advertising carried for the first quarter of 1919. At the present rate of increase the entire year will approximate an unprecedented total of FIFTEEN MILLION LINES, a volume never before even distantly approached in the history of the Post-Dispatch or any other St. Louis newspaper.

"Tall oaks from little acorns grow," and from the smallest beginning thousands of advertisers have grown and prospered with the aid of the

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

This result of results is, and always has been, based on a circulation free from catch-penny offers, an active, bona fide net paid circulation that reaches all of the worth-while readers of St. Louis and contiguous territory—readers who, day after day, year after year, look to "St. Louis' One Big Newspaper" as their purchasing guide.

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED FOR CITY HOSPITAL

Excellent Work Done by Institution Calls Attention to Cramped Quarters.

A municipal institution in which there is always some one on duty, which never has a holiday, which works the hardest when people generally are least inclined to work, is the St. Louis city hospital. It is the only hospital in St. Louis which is open to receive patients for any cause throughout 24 hours of every day in the year. Accidents to persons of all degrees create a steady flow of patients and the only patient ever barred is one who is in financial and physical condition to go elsewhere.

When the influenza was at its height in October the hospital took in many well-to-do patients who otherwise would have been without care, because the other hospitals were full.

The average daily population of the hospital is 700, nearly its capacity. The opening of city hospital No. 2 for colored at Garrison and Lawton avenues will relieve the strain, but the space gained will be needed for a night ward, extension of the children's wards, and emergency expansion space. The addition of hospital services and handle patients will be greatly increased by the erection of the contemplated clinic and detention building. A four-story clinic and detention building at the Fifteenth and Carroll streets corner of the grounds is planned. The housing of patients who are prisoners is inadequate and unsatisfactory and the upper stories of the new building will be used as modern wards with detention precautions.

Under present conditions patients are received in a cramped and dark room in the basement of the hospital. Discharged patients who require further treatment are confined in the small clinic next to the receiving room. Hospital authorities say there is need for better quarters for the preliminary diagnosis and direction of incoming patients. If a large, modern clinic is erected many patients can be discharged from the hospital sooner than they would be under present conditions, and receive treatment at the clinic while convalescent. A great saving in hospital bed-space would result.

Prior to the war an appropriation of $125,000 was made for the building of the hospital building fund of $100,000 per annum, and for the building of a clinic last year was all about $24,000, which caused a postponement. The plans for the clinic building have been ready for some time and are being revised under the direction of Edmund R. Kinsey, President of the Board of Public Service, to make the construction cost somewhat lower.

John D. Schmoll, Director of Public Welfare, says that a new ordinance will be requested to authorize the construction of the building for about $225,000. No appropriation is now necessary, as the control of the hospital building fund is in Schmoll's department.

The report of the last grand jury contained the following statement: "We found the city hospital in good condition and efficiently managed. However, there is great need for a clinic building and we recommend that this structure be erected at once according to plans." The January grand jury had condemned the housing facilities for sick prisoners at the hospital.

Other needs of the city hospital it is hoped to fill in the near future are those of a modern children's hospital and of a nurse's home. A tennis court, which it is thought the Park Department may provide, is under consideration, if it can be arranged other facilities for athletic recreation are desired.

Dr. Rolla Henry, the manager, has been in charge since last fall. He is chief dispensary physician for the city prior to that.

GEN. WOOD APPROVES PLAN TO PREVENT STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS

Says Idea of St. Louis Merchant Is a Step in the Right Direction.

E. B. Goodman, 1202 Washington Avenue, in a conference with Major-General George Wood during his visit to St. Louis, was told that his plan to prevent strikes and lockouts, and to build up industries by the establishment of a commission of representatives of labor, employers of labor and the public, whose duty it will be to arbitrate all labor differences without financial loss to the employer or loss of time to the employee, was a step toward the prevention of industrial strife, and will be touched upon by Gen. Wood in his future speeches.

Goodman, who is a merchant, recently published a pamphlet advocating the establishment of a commission such as he called to Gen. Wood's attention. His plan calls for the establishment of employment bureaus by each industry, which, he says, will aid materially in placing the unemployed at work, and provide for a fund raised by employers and employees to aid the former to stimulate their industries and insure the latter against loss of time and consequent decrease in wages by reason of labor difficulties.

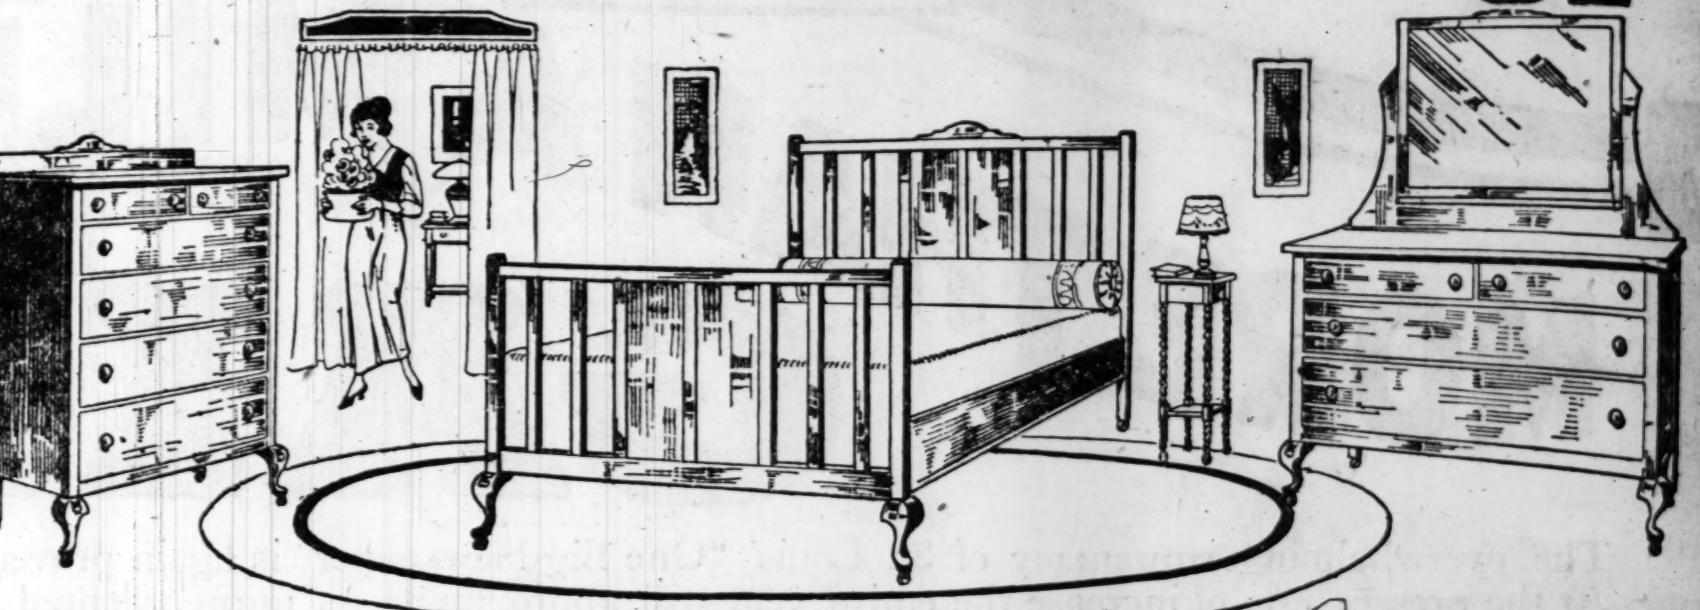

The federation is the outgrowth of a belief among the representative business women of this country that as a group is being lost, but that, gathered in a federation, such an influence would be of value to commerce, both to the employer and to the employee.
